

Council Committee Planning for Sale Of Police Station

Georgia Railway and Power Company Officials Will Be Asked to Make Offer for This Property.

HOLCOMBE MENTIONED AS NEW POLICE HEAD

Major Pendleton Says the Place Must Be Paying $7,200 Before He Would Consider It.

Important developments Thursday in the police reform movement of the new city administration were:

Announcement by Jesse W. Armistead, chairman of the police committee, that the Georgia Railway and Power company will be asked to make an offer on the present police station on Decatur street, the proceeds, in the event of sale, to be appropriated toward erection of a larger and more modern station.

Declaration by Major A. L. Pendleton, Jr., that he will not become head of the department unless the city equals his present salary, $7,200 a year, which is twice the salary received by Chief James L. Beavers, and he is given definite assurance of the permanency of his position.

Holcombe Mentioned. Reports that Police Captain A. J. Holcombe, of the evening watch, is an additional prospect as a successor to Chief Beavers.

Announcement by Councilman J. A. Beall, of the police committee, that the selection of a new police head he would vote only for a man inside the department.

Disclosure that Edward H. Ingan, former police commissioner, possesses an agreement signed by Chief Beavers at the time of his reinstatement in 1918 in which the chief agreed to resign whenever a majority of the police board requests it.

Chairman Armistead announced that a bid from the power company for the police barracks property will be solicited following a thorough inspection of the premises Thursday afternoon by the new police committee to determine the exact physical nature of the property.

Next To Steam Plant. The stationhouse property, at 175 Decatur street, adjoins the steam power plant of the power company which fronts on Butler street. Its proximity to the steam plant suggested to the committee the possibility that the power company might submit an offer on the municipal parcel.

Power company officials Thursday night refused to comment upon the proposal.

Disposition of the present police station and acquisition of larger headquarters has been recommended by Chief Beavers for two years. No definite location has been suggested for a new city jail.

Inspect the Station. Considerable time was spent by the police committee in inspecting the station and its equipment Thursday. The system of keeping records of criminals and stolen articles, and the office records of the chief were carefully studied. Some revisions in these methods will be made, it was indicated.

The signal system was declared to be entirely inadequate, and more efficient signal equipment will be sought.

The first formal meeting of the police committee will be held next week. It was stated following the meeting Thursday that it was entirely informal in nature, and was confined to the inspection tour and a general discussion of the police situation.

Councilman Fred Woodall, of the third ward, a member of the committee.

LOUISIANA TROOPS CAMP ON GROUNDS AT COURTHOUSE

Two Infantry Companies to Maintain Order at Mer Rouge Murder Hearings Today.

SOLDIERS TO SEARCH EVERY CITIZEN

Squadron of State Cavalry Brings Up Rear in the Community Where Tense Feeling Prevails.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Bastrop, La., January 4.—The "open hearing" in the Morehouse kidnapping and murder cases begins at the parish courthouse tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Final preparations were completed by the state this afternoon in the proceedings, by which an effort will be made to indict those persons believed to be responsible for the masked and robed mob action on August 24, when two of five men kidnaped were killed and their bodies cast into a lake.

Only one prisoner will face the bar at tomorrow's hearing unless the state sets into motion its dragnet to scoop up 35 or 45 men believed by the authorities members of the mob.

State officials remained silent tonight as to when additional arrests will occur. It was understood they were in possession of a list of those implicated named by two men who were said to have confessed under the promise of immunity.

Martial Law Likely. Adjutant-General Toombs failed to promulgate the martial law order he was said to have in his possession. He desired to put off such action as long as possible, he said. However, it was known the slightest display of firearms would be met with a military order.

Firearms are prevalent in both Mer Rouge and Bastrop in unprecedented quantities. Mer Rouge citizens in particular are known to have armed themselves due to the strained feelings between the hostile factions.

Those entering the courthouse tomorrow will be searched for firearms, it was learned. The courthouse will be protected by two companies of state troops now camped on the courthouse and jail grounds.

A squadron of state cavalry was moved today from Mer Rouge to Bastrop, leaving the remainder of the troop at Mer Rouge where a company of infantry is encamped.

The mounted soldiers are expected to be used in serving subpoenas and making arrests. The conditions of the roads required the usage of such troops, it was stated.

Hold Soldiers Ready. The company commander of the Opelousas infantry regiment, "L" company in receipt of instructions to hold L's company in readiness for movement at any time. "I said he so had transportation and rations ready. If this company is ordered out there will be three companies of infantry and one each of cavalry and machine guns in Morehouse.

Attorney-General A. V. Cocco arrived here today and was in conference with his assistants. He announced that Howard Warren, state senator and a leading attorney of Shreveport, has been employed as a special prosecutor to fill the vacancy created by the sudden resignation of St. Clair Adams, of New Orleans, last night. The attorney-general will also be assisted by T. Semmes W. "sly," George S. Guion and Paul A. "paycar, assistant attorney-general.

Ma Witnesses. Wholesale subpoenas were in process.

in Appeal to High Court.

Who owns the coffin when the funeral is over?

That is a nut the Georgia court of appeals will have to crack in the case of Sam Ware, negro undertaker who was convicted Thursday of stealing caskets from Southview cemetery and was sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment by Judge John D. Humphries.

Appeal in the case will be filed by the negro's attorneys, and one contention will be that the criminal code of Georgia makes no ruling covering the taking of coffins from graves and that under the law, even granting that Ware took the coffins, he has committed no crime.

Belongs to No One. A casket, once placed underground, belongs to no one and cannot, therefore, be stolen, the attorneys contend. The estate of the deceased does not own it because it is charged to funeral expenses and deducted from the

Coue's Recently Written Articles on Suggestion

Frenchman's authorized message to America on self-mastery brought up to present date. First of a series of seven articles written exclusively for The Constitution and other members of the American Newspaper alliance within last few weeks.

Professor Emile Coue, "The Man of the Hour," who, in a series of special articles written within the last few weeks, reveals for the readers of The Constitution a summary of his remarkable philosophy and methods of self-betterment.

The Constitution today begins publication of a series of exclusive articles written within the last few weeks by Emile Coue, internationally famous auto-suggestion expert. These articles bring up to the present date, Coue's remarkable system of thought which has startled the world since the writing of his book many months ago. Following this series, Professor Coue will write exclusively for The Constitution and other member newspapers of the North American Newspaper Alliance, the results of his demonstrations and clinical observations in American cities. His own signed reports of his progress here will appear in this section only in The Constitution.—Editor's Note.

ARTICLE I. BY EMILE COUE.

In beginning this series of articles in The Constitution, I want to say how glad I am to come into personal contact with the great American public on their own side of the Atlantic. And at the same time I cannot help feeling just a little embarrassed. I have an idea that people on this continent, expect from me some wonderful revelation, bordering on the miraculous, whereas, in reality, the message I have to give is so simple that many may be tempted at first to consider it almost insignificant.

Let me say right here, however, that simple as my message may be, it will teach those who consent to hear it and to give it fair thought, a key to permanent physical and moral well-being which can never be lost.

To the uninitiated, auto-suggestion or self-mastery is likely to appear disconcerting in its simplicity. But does not every discovery, every invention seem simple and ordinary once it has become vulgarized and the details or mechanism of it known to the man in the streets? Not that I am claiming auto-suggestion to be a discovery. Far from it. Auto-suggestion is as old as the hills; only we had forgotten to practice it, and so we need to learn it all over again.

Think of all of the forces of the universe ready to serve us. Yet centuries elapsed before man penetrated their secret and discovered the means of utilizing them. It is the same in the domain of thought and mind; we have at our service forces of transcendent value of which we are either completely ignorant or else only vaguely conscious.

The power of thought, of idea, is immeasurable. It is immeasurable. The world is dominated by thought. The human being individually is also entirely governed by his own thoughts, good or bad. The powerful action of the mind over the body, which explains the effects of suggestion, was well known to the great thinkers of the middle ages, whose vigorous intelligence embraced the sum of human knowledge.

Every idea conceived by the mind, says Saint Thomas, is an order which the organism obeys. It can also, he adds, engender a disease or cure it. The effectiveness of auto-suggestion could not be more plainly stated.

Known to Ancients. We know, indeed, that the whole human organism is governed by the nervous system, the center of which is the brain—the seat of thought. In other words, the brain or mind, controls every cell, every organ, every function of the body. This being so, it is not clear that by means of thought, we are the absolute masters of our physical organism and that, as the ancients showed centuries ago, thought—or suggestion—can and does produce disease or cure it? Pythagoras taught the principles of auto-suggestion to his disciples. He wrote "God the Father, deliver them from their sufferings, and show them what supernatural power is at their call."

Even more definite is the doctrine of Aristotle, which taught that "a vivid imagination compels the body to obey it, for it is a natural principle of movement. Imagination, indeed, governs all the forces of sensibility, while the latter, in its turn, controls the beating of the heart, and through it, sets in motion all vital functions; thus, the entire organism may be rapidly modified. Nevertheless, however vivid the imagination, it cannot change the form of a hand or foot or other member."

I have particular satisfaction in recalling this element of Aristotle's teaching, because it contains two of the most important, nay, essential principles of my own method of auto-suggestion:

1. The dominating role of the imagination.

2. The results to be expected from the practice of auto-suggestion must necessarily be limited to those coming within the bounds of physical possibility.

I shall deal with these essential points in greater detail in another article.

Unfortunately, all these great truths, handed down from antiquity, have been transmitted in the cloudy garb of abstract notions, or shrouded in the mystery of esoteric secrets, and thus appeared inaccessible to the ordinary mortal. If I have had the privilege of discerning the hidden meaning of the old philosophers, or extracting the essence of a vital principle, and of formulating it in a manner extremely simple and comprehensible to modern humanity, I have also had the joy of seeing it practised with success by thousands of sufferers for more than a score of years.

Slaves of Suggestion. Mark well, I am no healer. I can only teach others to cure themselves and to maintain perfect health.

I hope to show, moreover, that the domain of application of auto-suggestion is practically unlimited. Not only are we able to control and modify our physical functions, but we can develop in any desired direction our moral and mental faculties, merely by the proper exercise of suggestion: In the field of education there is vast scope for suggestion.

From our birth to our death, we are all the slaves of suggestion. Our destinies are decided by suggestion. It is an all-powerful tyrant of which, unless we take heed, we are the blind instruments. Now, it is in our power to turn the tables and to discipline suggestion, and direct it in the way we ourselves wish; then it becomes auto-suggestion; we have taken the reins into our own hands, and have become masters of the most marvelous instrument conceivable. Nothing is impossible to us, except, of course, that which is contrary to the laws of nature and the universe.

How are we to attain this command? We must first thoroughly grasp at least the elements of the mechanism of the mental portion of what constitutes the human being. The mental personality is composed of the conscious and the subconscious. It is generally believed that the power and acts of a man depend almost exclusively upon his conscious self. It is beginning to be understood, however, that compared with the immen-

BELIEVE JEWELS OF RUSSIAN CZARS ARE BURIED IN U. S.

Grave of Sailor Is Declared to Be the End of "Gold and Diamond Rainbow."

FEDERAL OFFICIALS ADMIT INVESTIGATION

Gems Were Smuggled Into This Country in Coffin of One of "Uncle Sam's" Seamen.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Chicago, January 4.—Crown jewels of the Russian czars, valued at from four to five million dollars, are buried in the grave of James Jones, an American seaman, in the national cemetery at Cypress Hills, Brooklyn, according to a copyrighted story published today by The Chicago Daily News.

The jewels, The News says, were smuggled into the country by New York men, who obtained them in Vladivostok in 1920. En route to America, one of the conspirators, the story says, decided to double-cross his associates, and hid the jewels in the coffin of Jones, a messman who had died aboard the ship.

The body was buried, the story goes, before he had a chance to recover the jewels and as the cemetery is under guard, they are presumably hidden in the grave.

Will Search in Grave. The News says William B. Williams, of the New York office of the department of justice, and custom officials, will ask Federal Judge Hand for an order to open the grave.

Federal officials, the story continues, have been working on the case for two years. They eventually unearthed records which fitted in with the anonymous tips received by the department and by the former imperial Russian ambassador telling of the plot. These records show that the army transport Edellyn sailed from New York January 17, 1920, and reached Vladivostok May 29, leaving June 1 for New York by way of Gibraltar.

A short distance out of Gibraltar the seaman, Jones, died and his body was embalmed, eventually being buried September 23, 1920, in Brooklyn. All these details correspond to the information furnished in the anonymous letters which purported to come from two members of the band who were double-crossed.

Smuggle in Gems. The records also show that three members of the transport's crew deserted at Yokohama. The letters said members of the band who had shipped in the crew to reach Siberia and get the jewels were forced to desert ship and proceed by another route because the transport had been delayed and would not reach the Siberian port in time for them to keep their appointment with the persons who had the gems.

At the department of justice office here agents admitted they knew of the investigation and that The News story coincided with their information, but they said the case was in the hands of the treasury department secret service and Williams in New York.

SIX ARE KILLED IN RACE CLASH

Three White Men and Three Negroes Dead in Outbreak at Rosewood, Florida.

Gainesville, Fla., January 4.—Three white men and three negroes are dead and a number of white and blacks injured as a result of an outbreak at Rosewood, three miles from Sumner, Levy county, late today and early tonight, according to reports received here late tonight by telephone from Cedar Key.

The reports added that the population of Cedar Key was aroused and that many armed men from there were planning to go to Rosewood. The Gainesville Sun was requested to ask Sheriff Ramsey of this, Alachua county, to go to the scene with as many men as possible as it was feared the situation, apparently already beyond the control of the Levy county authorities, would grow worse.

The trouble is believed to have resulted from the assault of a young white woman at Sumner early Monday. One negro was lynched a few miles from Sumner Monday night when he admitted to a mob that he had transported in a wagon for several miles a negro suspected of the crime. Two negro suspects are in jail at Bronson, the county seat of Levy county, while posse still are continuing their search for two others, one of whom, an escaped convict, is believed by Sheriff Walker to have been the actual assailant.

Sumner, a sawmill town, is on the Seaboard Air Line railway about 40 miles southwest of this city. Rosewood is three miles from Sumner and about 10 miles from Cedar Key.

Hughes' Proposal May Prevent March Into Ruhr Valley

DEATH TOLL PLACED AT THIRTY-FIVE IN BRIDGE CRASH

Itinerant Lumbermen Comprise Greatest Part of Near 100 Not Accounted For.

BELIEVE CHILDREN DROWNED IN RIVER

Believed Bodies of Number Will Not Be Recovered for Several Weeks.

Kelso, Wash., January 4.—The death toll in the Kelso bridge disaster was estimated at 35 late Thursday by Coroner W. D. Van Noten.

Van Noten based his estimate on reports of missing persons made to him and a checkup on the payroll and books of various mills and other industrial concerns in the vicinity, and declared many more might have been killed or drowned.

No bodies have yet been found, and the search of the debris of the huge span is still in progress.

The only official death thus far reported is that of G. O. McDonald, who died in a hospital Thursday night from injuries received in the bridge crash. Harry Kirk, also badly injured, is likely to die, but 15 others injured less seriously are out of danger.

Accurate figures of the death toll may never be learned. Itinerant lumbermen, returning to this city from their work across the river, comprise many of the dead and thus far it has been impossible to check up on the missing. About fifty of nearly 150 persons on the bridge at the time of the crash have been accounted for.

A new note of horror was added to Kelso's confusion and bereavement when it was reported that a school bus, bearing twenty-six little children home from their classrooms, was among the dozen or more motor vehicles thrown into the muddy waters when the bridge went out.

Free Rescued. How many of the children lost their lives is unknown. Al Walthrop, of Portland, declared he saw four rescued, but had no idea as to the fate of the others. He saw no subsequent trace of the remaining twenty-two.

Walthrop was near the east end of the bridge when the cable snapped, and felt the structure begin to sag. He escaped and with a small handful of similarly fortunate ones, aided in the few heroic rescues which followed.

"A lot of people went down the

RELIEVES FORCE ELEMENT

That this relieves the French plan of elements of force against which the American secretary of state directed his remarks at New Haven is wholly improbable. Mr. Hughes said at that time:

"We should view with disfavor measures which, instead of producing reparations, would threaten disaster."

At another point the secretary asked what was to be done if the Paris conference failed to reach an agreement.

Inauguration of New College President Witnessed by Vast Assemblage of Notables.

Rome, Ga., January 4.—(Special.) In the presence of an assemblage of notables such as has seldom met in Georgia, Dr. Daniel James Blocker was this morning inaugurated as president of Shorter college, succeeding the late Dr. A. W. VanHoose.

Indicative of the importance of the occasion is the list of men of prominence in educational and political life who occupied the chairs on the platform in the college chapel, wearing academic caps and gowns.

Among them were Governor-elect C. M. Walker, Dr. M. L. Brittain, former state superintendent of schools, now head of Georgia Tech; Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, president of Mercer college, and head of the Mercer system of 119 Baptist schools and colleges, of which Shorter is one; Chancellor David C. Barrow, of the University of Georgia; Dr. William F. Quillian, president of Wesleyan college, the oldest woman's college in America; Dr. Albert R. Finance Body Idea of Secretary Is Alternative for French Invasion of Germany.

AMERICANS MAY BE PUT ON COMMISSION

Deplore Attempt at Forcible Collection Following Break Between Powers at Premiers' Meet.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Washington, January 4.—The dissolution at Paris of the conference of allied leaders was regarded here as bringing the reparations crisis measurably near the point touched on by Secretary Hughes in his recent New Haven speech. Although the allied statesmen have failed to agree, there still stands before them an alternative to attempted forcible collection in Germany pointed out by Mr. Hughes.

There was no word from official quarters today to indicate any further initiative was to be expected now from Washington. The only authorized comment was a statement at the state department that Mr. Hughes' suggestion was put forward to "leave several doors open to the premiers in the event of an emergency."

Presumably word will come from Paris if the French government sees hope in the American suggestion that not alone the question of the amount Germany can pay, but also the method of payment, be referred for advisory recommendations to an international commission of financial authorities unhampered by political concerns or obligations.

Mr. Hughes has indicated that American financiers would serve on such a commission with governmental sanction if they were invited.

Time for Decision. There is believed to be time for a decision abroad to examine the possibilities of the American suggestion before France can move to carry out the program outlined to the council by Premier Poincare and rejected by the British prime minister. The present moratorium does not expire until January 15 and dispatch of a French civil commission into the Ruhr valley and other steps toward forcible collections included in the French plan, it is felt, cannot well be taken in advance of that date and formal announcement of Germany's failure to make required payments.

Since Secretary Hughes made his suggestion in his New Haven speech, both the French and British plans for settlement have been presented and rejected. It is to be noted that the French proposal carefully avoids any employment of the French army, at least in the first instance, in the plan for reparations collections advanced. The work would be done by civil commissioners sent from France.

Relieves Force Element. That this relieves the French plan of elements of force against which the American secretary of state directed his remarks at New Haven is wholly improbable. Mr. Hughes said at that time:

"We should view with disfavor measures which, instead of producing reparations, would threaten disaster."

use from such a course. Apart from political reasons, believe that the opinion of experts is that such measures will not produce reparations payments, but might tend to destroy the basis of those payments which must be found in economic recuperation.

There can be little doubt that the secretary's words precisely indicate the view of the Washington government as to the probable effect of the French plan of action, although they were uttered before the French plan was made public. The political results that officials here believe would result in Germany from the proposed French measures evidently are not of an even more serious character, although Mr. Hughes specifically eliminated them from consideration in his speech. There is no doubt that state department advice have indicated that a collapse of the German government was to be expected if forcible collections were attempted, and that political chaos would follow.

Much Speculation.

There was much speculation after the break-up of the premier's meeting as to whether any French determination to carry out their plans independently might have on the status of the American army of occupation on the Rhine. No word on this subject was available. Secretary Hughes conferred late in the day with Secretary Weeks, but it was learned authoritatively that the forces on the Rhine were not mentioned. Matters of interest to the army and having to do with foreign countries, it was said, had accumulated, and it was on these two points that the cabinet officers exchanged views.

Earlier today Mr. Hughes spent more than an hour with Ambassador Harney. Again, however, no word was given out as to the nature of the discussion. Since Mr. Harney was called home from London, very largely for the purpose of talking over with President Harding and Mr. Hughes, the situation that has now presented itself, it is to be inferred that the Washington administration is not without hope that the course it has suggested informally will appeal to allied statesmen, and American helpfulness in the crisis become available to Europe through the only avenue officials here can see to that result. There would be any immediate change of policy in Washington regarding the troops on the Rhine even if the French government should proceed to execution of its reparations plans. The question of movement of French troops through the American-Rhine bridgehead territory into the Ruhr is an immediate contention. Even if it was, it is said, it would not be a cause for the French to obtain permission of the American commander for such a movement nor could the United States oppose it except in a diplomatic way.

What ultimate effect the French operations beyond the Rhine might have on the status of Major General Allen's command is a debatable question. It would not be taken up in Washington, it is indicated, in advance of the event and no definite policy regarding withdrawal of the forces is to be expected, except in the light of conditions of fact warranting a change in attitude.

with the administration's attitude disclosed but with a declaration of war from the republican "irreconcilable" camp.

After a white house conference today between Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, republican leader, and President Harding and George Harvey, American ambassador to Great Britain, an hour's debate in the senate, a special meeting of the senate foreign relations committee was called for tomorrow by Senator Lodge to take up the bill of Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, which would authorize the president to appoint American representatives on the commission.

The foreign relations committee will determine tomorrow the procedure to be followed with the resolution, whose importance, Senator Lodge told the senate, was fully realized in view of the break today at Paris on the reparations question. Senator Lodge has not conferred with Secretary Hughes of the state department, but it is expected that the committee will arrange to obtain Mr. Hughes' opinion on the Robinson bill and also obtain information as to the administration position with reference to the reparations and other questions in Europe.

ALLIANCE SPLITS IN REPARATIONS.

Paris, January 4.—(By The Associated Press.)—The alliance between France, Great Britain, Italy and Belgium fell apart today over the treatment of German reparations. The Latin powers, France, Italy and Belgium, have agreed to accept the French plan on that subject, while England, although separating from them, expects to co-operate, especially with France, on other questions.

The situation has been in progress here since January 2, ended with friendly words, Mr. Bonar Law made a statement on behalf of the British government and the British people, as follows:

"The British government, after giving most earnest and careful consideration to the French proposals, have come to the conclusion that they cannot approve them and that, if carried out, they will not only fail to produce the desired results but are likely to have grave and serious results on the economic life of Europe."

"The British government at the same time desire to assure the government of the French republic that while they regret extremely that there should be an irreconcilable difference of view on a subject so serious, the feeling of friendship on the part of the British government is unimpaired, and as they believe, of the British people toward the government and people of France remains unchanged."

In his reply, Mr. Poincaré said: "The French government for their part, have examined very attentively and carefully the British proposals, and the longer they have studied them the more they have felt obliged to recognize said proposals as involving, together with a considerable reduction of the debt owing to France, the overthrow of the treaty of Versailles. It is impossible for them to accept such a solution."

"The government of the republic deeply regret their inability to agree with Great Britain on this serious question, but they thank the British government for their friendly statement and can assure them that in spite of the differences of opinion, the sentiments of the French government and nation toward England remain unchanged and cordial."

Marquis Della Torretta, representing Italy, said:

"The Italian delegation sincerely regrets to reach the efforts it has made to reach an accord among the allies on such a grave question have not been crowned with success. The Italian delegation has interpreted the thought of its own government in the conviction that the disagreement among the allies has not influenced the cordial sentiments of friendships so long existing, and it expresses the hope that eventually even on this present question there will be reconciliation and agreement."

Mussolini Turns Scale.

Premier Mussolini turned the scale decisively against the British plan. The Italian delegation received their final declaration until today, and this morning it appeared that they were inclined to support Mr. Bonar Law's proposal with slight modifications. A telegram received from Rome just before the conference opened instructed them to vote for the French plan as against the British, in case they should find it less to push their own plan. This strengthened France and Belgium, and Great Britain stood alone.

Mr. Poincaré is not elated tonight over his success. He is described as in sober mood, conscious of great anxieties and difficulties ahead. He will proceed warily and will report to the French parliament on its resumption next Thursday. Meanwhile the reparations commission will meet Tuesday to pass on coal deliveries and also on Germany's request for a moratorium.

The sheriff expressed the opinion that the men are not Frenchmen, but were masquerading in the French uniforms to throw investigators off their tracks.

The sheriff reported that the stolen car bogged in the mud on a road near Clinton. The men offered no resistance when arrested, he said. With them were two suitcases containing Dantonio's reported were picked up in New Orleans before starting on their wild trip to the state capital.

OPEN ARGUMENTS IN LEQ OR CASE

Both Sides Concede the Authority of Congress to Prohibit Entrance of Ships Carrying Booze.

Washington, January 4.—Former Attorney-General Wickersham, facing the former president under whom he served, now Chief Justice Taft, opened the arguments Thursday in behalf of the foreign steamship companies and two American operators, appealing from a decision by Federal Judge Hand, in New York, upholding the Daugherty high-seas ruling.

The principal arguments center about the contention of counsel for both sides that congress can prohibit foreign steamships from bringing intoxicating liquor into American ports, but, counsel for the government insists that the court should interpret present laws as having that effect, while counsel for the shipping interests contend that had congress intended to limit liquor from foreign ships, it would have been explicit to that effect, as it was in excluding opium smoking.

Arguments are to continue for a few days, and a decision will follow as soon thereafter as possible.

DEMOCRATS DENY FILIBUSTER CHARGES

Ship Subsidy Measure Makes No Progress When Brought Up in Senate Thursday.

Washington, January 4.—Republican charges of the existence of a filibuster against the administration shipping bill were renewed in the senate today by republican leaders and denied sharply by the democratic side. No progress was made on the bill which is to be again laid aside temporarily tomorrow to make way for another appropriation bill and later for farm credit legislation.

Senators Watson, of Indiana, and Smoot, of Utah, made the filibustering charges which were denied by Senator Harrison, Mississippi. In order, he said, to test his interpretation of the democratic opponents of the administration bill had determined it should not come to a vote before congress adjourns. Senator Watson said that two weeks hence and another six weeks from today. Senator Harrison said two weeks was too short a time for debate and Senator Smoot, of Utah, promptly objected to the six weeks proposal.

Says Party Co-operates.

Denying the filibustering charges, Senator Harrison declared and Senator Watson interpreted the bill as had co-operated in expediting the annual appropriation bills to a stage of completion unprecedented. None would have gotten through, Senator Harrison said, if the democrats had been really filibustering.

The filibustering tilt came during another humorous foray by Senator Harrison against the republican side. He brought up the letter written last November to Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, by Senator McCormick, of Illinois, chairman of the republican senatorial caucus, in which Mr. McCormick advocated changes in the senate organization to expedite business.

Senator McCormick's request for a steering committee "trust" representative of republican opinion was said by Senator Harrison to be an "insultation" against the present party leadership. The Mississippi senator asked but no republican committee to the present make-up of the republican steering committee, which, he said, had been "revamped by the people" in November elections by defeat of half its members.

New Bonus Bill Is Introduced In House Thursday

Washington, January 4.—A soldier's bonus, to be financed by a re-employment of the excess profits tax law, was introduced in a bill introduced today by Representative Fear, republican, Wisconsin. The bill is similar in many ways to that vetoed by President Harding last year but would eliminate the five billion dollar limit on the borrowing value of adjusted compensation certificates.

Thompson to Remain With Ship Board Until June, Belief

Washington, January 4.—An announcement was made by Chairman Lawler of the shipping board today that Commissioner Frederick I. Thompson, of Mobile, Ala., would make every effort to remain with the board to the end of his present term in June, Mr. Thompson, it had been indicated, might be forced to relinquish his post earlier because of demands upon his time by his newspaper properties in Mobile and in Birmingham.

Spike Settlement Rumor in Divorce Case of Farrar

New York, January 4.—Rumors that Geraldine Farrar, former Metro-Goldwyn actress, and her husband, her actor husband, were to settle their marital differences without resort to court were spread today when Sir George B. Colahan set aside for trial next Thursday her suit for divorce.

The pending action is the fourth started by the diva. Three others were dropped.

DECIDE FAVORABLY ON CAPPER MEASURE

Senate Banking Committee Agrees on Partial Program of Farm Credits Legislation.

Washington, January 4.—A partial program of farm credit legislation was agreed on today by the senate banking committee, which decided to report the Capper bill substantially as drawn and then proceed with consideration of the Lenroot-Anderson bill in addition.

The committee's action clarifies the farm credits program by insuring that it will include two bills instead of a committee composite measure. Chairman McLean, of the banking committee, does not plan to call up either bill in the senate until next week, when he expects to reach a decision.

The committee vote on the bill of Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, chairman of the senate farm bloc, was unanimous, but there was said to be some disagreement on the features of the Lenroot-Anderson measure. The committee inserted in the Capper bill, which was approved recently by Secretary Mellon, of the treasury department, in preference to the Lenroot-Anderson proposal, a provision extending the war finance corporation until March 31, 1924. This has been urged by agricultural organizations.

The Capper bill, drafted in part by Eugene Meyer, director of the war finance corporation, provides for organization of the farmers and live stock growers co-operative credit organization. It also amends the federal reserve act by extending the maturity of negotiable live stock paper to nine months and reduces the national banks in small towns to a provision designed to induce more banks to enter the federal system.

Another feature of the bill increases from $10,000 to $25,000 the individual loan limit of federal land banks. Government aid in furnishing farm credits is contained in the Lenroot-Anderson bill, which has the endorsement of Secretary Wallace, of the department of agriculture, and other government officials. It would provide for federal financing of individual loan departments under the existing land bank act.

The Capper bill, after being agreed upon today by the committee, was referred to a sub-committee consisting of Chairman McLean and Senators Glass, democrat, Pennsylvania, and Glass, democrat, Virginia.

POLLARD INDICTED ON MURDER CHARGE

Jury Finds Against Man for Alleged Complicity in Killing of Stenographer.

Richmond, Va., January 4.—Following an indictment by a Henrico county grand jury late today on a charge of murder in connection with the killing of his former stenographer, Mrs. Thelma Hamm Richards, on the night of December 11, Thos. J. Pollard, 32, permitted to renew his bond of $10,000 and was released from custody pending trial of the case on February 12, in the federal court.

The indictment, charging first degree murder, was returned by a grand jury after a lengthy deliberation of the case. Witnesses called before the inquisitorial body included Herbert Richardson, divorced husband of the slain woman, and Louise Beck, alleged "other woman" in the case.

Pollard is charged with "deliberate, premeditated and malicious" murder. The indictment reads that he shot, set forth that the bullet struck her in the left chest, penetrated the heart, caused her instant death.

Spartanburg Walks As Officials Argue Over Utility Tie-Up

Columbia, S. C., January 4.—The South Carolina railway authority to determine what action, if any, shall be taken in connection with the street railway tie-up in that city. Announcement of this effect was made tonight by Chairman Frank W. Shepley, of the commission, after a conference with George B. Tripp, president, and H. E. ROME BANKS AID COTTON PLANTERS

Decide to Create Revolving Fund of $20,000 to Purchase Seed and Calcium Arsenate.

Rome, Ga., January 4.—(Special.) At a largely attended meeting of Rome bankers and business men held here tonight, it was decided to create a revolving fund of from $15,000 to $20,000 to aid the cotton growers of Floyd county in making a better cotton crop next season.

The fund will be used to put the best seed and sufficient calcium arsenate to fight the boll weevil and all of the amount will be advanced by local banks and the other half by local merchants and others interested. A committee was appointed to carry out the decision of the meeting. Two carloads of calcium arsenate have already been ordered and will be sold the farmers at actual cost and as many more will be obtained as are considered necessary.

POLITICIANS EXPLOIT FALL'S RESIGNATION

See Change of Working Changes to Best Interests Of Conservative Wing.

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, January 4.—(By Constitution Bureau.)—It developed today that political strategists have a movement on foot to exploit the resignation of Secretary Fall of the interior department, officially announced at the white house yesterday, in a manner that will be to the interests of the conservative wing of the republican party.

Reliable reports have it that party conferences have agreed on Representative Mondell, floor leader of the house, as Mr. Fall's successor. Party strategists are figuring that for party interests it may be best to have Mr. Fall's resignation in the hands of the present congress adjourns, which would make it necessary for new floor leader to be elected at once.

Party counselors figure that Representative Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, would easily be elected during the present adjournment, which is overwhelmily republican, while if the election goes over to the next body there are threats that ultra-conservative members will combine with special groups and make trouble for the conservative republican majority. But if Longworth is elected in this congress his re-election in the next would be easier.

Take N Chances.

Since Secretary Fall is going away, and since the election of a new floor leader in the next house will be made necessary because of the recent defeat of Mr. Mondell in his race for the senate in Wyoming, it is argued that it would be much better for party interests to have Mondell go into the cabinet before March 4, the date set by the cabinet president in the event Representative Mondell could be appointed before the present congress adjourns, which would make it necessary for new floor leader to be elected at once.

Immediately after the Fall resignation became known Mr. Mondell's name was linked with those mentioned for the post. Western republicans put his name forward as their representative in the cabinet, declaring his record of public affairs gained through a long service in the house, peculiarly fitted him for the position.

Harding Uncertain.

Whether President Harding will concur in the plans has not been in question, but it is thought that he will be greatly influenced by the sentiment of party leaders, even to the extent of disregarding the white house statement of a few days past that he would not accept the nomination to the next government posts. In this class several defeated senators have been prominently mentioned, foremost of which is Senator New of Indiana, one of the chief executives' closest friends. Persis reports have been current, however, that the Indiana senator would be tendered a berth in the cabinet.

Senator Kellogg, of Minnesota, another "lame duck" who has received frequent mention for the Fall vacancy, issued a public statement today in which he said he was neither a candidate nor would he accept the appointment.

MINE CONFERENCE SEES SLOW PROGRESS

Believe Failure Will Result in Finding Common Ground for Future Negotiations.

Chicago, January 4.—Failure to find any common ground on which to base future negotiations for working rules and wages loomed as a distinct probability here tonight as the conference of operators and miners from 15 bituminous districts adjourned after two days, in which no real progress has been made.

It met here December 5. Probability of ever assembling a representative gathering of bituminous coal operators and miners, if this 15 district conference disbands without accomplishing its purpose, was declared by many to be remote.

Nothing was offered either by miners or operators in answer to the question of John J.ays in demand, chairman of the coal fact-finding commission, urging the continuance of operators under recent conditions for one year should other proposals fail.

Cooper, president of the board of trustees; Dr. W. D. Furry, dean of Shorter college, who presided during the ceremony; and Dr. J. E. Sammons, pastor of First Baptist church, who spoke on behalf of the city of Rome. The academic procession was composed of the classes, alumnae, faculty, invited guests. Persons participating in the exercises and the president-elect and dean, the college entered the chapel at 10:30 o'clock.

There was a word of prayer and impressive organ selections and songs.

Dean Furry Presides.

Dr. W. D. Furry, M.A., Ph.D., dean, and acting president of the college, presided, when the many distinguished clergies and members of the board of trustees present, and introduced each speaker on the program, and also Dr. Blocker.

The professional began at 10:30 o'clock, when the college family and the visitors entered in the following order: Freshmen, sophomores, juniors, seniors, alumni, faculty, invited guests. Persons participating in the program, president-elect of the college, board of trustees, and the dean of the college.

The professional, "God of Our Fathers," was followed by the invocation by Dr. E. P. Leyburn, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Rome. The address of welcome to Rome was delivered by Dr. E. P. Leyburn, pastor of the First Baptist church of Rome; for the trustees by R. P. Cooper, president of the board; the alumni, Miss Louise Bennett, one of the faculty, and the student body by Miss Florence Jo Everett.

These talks, which were short, were followed by addresses by the following distinguished visitors:

Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, who spoke on "The College Men of the Future," "The Women," by Dr. William F. Quillian, president of Wesleyan university. Dr. Rufus Weaver, president of Mercer university and chairman of the Mercer system of schools and colleges, spoke on "The Baptist Colleges of Georgia."

Dr. Albert R. Bond, corresponding secretary of the Baptist educational committee, who is in Europe, spoke on "The Educational Board."

Chancellor D. C. Barrow, of the University of Georgia, delivered a welcome address on the occasion of his visit to the college, and the worth of education. Louie D. Newton, editor of The Christian Index, delivered a welcome address on the occasion of his visit to the college, and the worth of education. Dr. Blocker from the University of Georgia, and Mrs. W. J. Neel, of Cartersville, spoke on "The Woman's Work."

Welcomed By Walker.

On behalf of the state of Georgia, in which he had great stress on the part Shorter has played in the education of the women of the south. Hon. Clifford D. Walker, governor-elect of Georgia, delivered a brilliant speech of welcome. He reviewed the work of Shorter from its founding in 1877 until today. For the future, under the direction of Dr. Blocker, he predicted great things.

To all these addresses Dr. Blocker responded with an eight minute speech, in which he ever declared from the chapel rostrum of the college, and won the hearts of faculty, students, alumni, trustees and visitors. His appeal to the loyalty of the faculty and students, to the spirit of colleges, and to higher education was magnificent. His was the address of a student, a thinker, an educator, all in one, second to none.

Rome feels that it has added a citizen that will greatly aid in the building of the college, which stands among the first in the country. Dr. Blocker's promise of greater things is already felt to be coming true, in his own presence.

Invited to Lunch.

At the conclusion of the exercises all the guests were invited to lunch at which about forty were present, including some of Rome's leading citizens.

Dr. Blocker created a very favorable impression among all present. He spoke about fifteen minutes on the subject, "Education of the Heart, the Mind and the Body."

today they would waive preliminary trial through the usual channels, a privilege according to all persons charged with capital offenses in this state.

The governor, rabid anti-klan, has charged that the physician was a member of the Ku Klux Klan. This, however, was not the first time the klan issue has been brought into the case. J. L. Gossip linking the Morehouse klan with the kidnapping and murders became so current that the supreme authorities of the Louisiana invisible empire sent investigators to Morehouse to ascertain who were responsible.

All activities of masked mobs in this vicinity during the last several months will come under the spotlight, it was understood.

VIADUCT ENGINEER CALLED TO ATLANTA

Construction company, whose bid was $513,453.50, W. D. Coleman, secretary and treasurer of the company, stated Thursday that specifications are being followed to the letter. He declined to comment on the matter of the plans being followed, but declared that sand, cement and gravel of the best grade obtainable in this section are being used. Cement is tested by the Pittsburgh testing laboratories at Birmingham before it is shipped here, he said.

Complaint against the plans of the consulting engineers was made public through a letter written by Engineer Kauffman to W. G. Cooper, chairman of the viaduct committee.

The letter has been incorporated in the tentative annual report of the city engineering department, but was eliminated from the final report on advice of James L. Mayson, city attorney.

Sims Demands Probe.

The city attorney explained Thursday that he had advised the elimination of the engineer's letter from the report because he regarded it as a rather severe criticism by one city official of other officials. Mayor Sims demanded a probe of the complaint after a citizen had informed him of the existence of the letter.

Among objections raised by Engineer Kauffman to the plan being executed is that the viaduct will be nine feet higher than is required by the railroads. A total clearance of 22 feet is required by the roads, it was shown, and specifications call for a clearance of 31 feet, he said.

Mayor Sims told the committee that although the city is paying the construction of the viaduct they are doing more harm than good if the charges of Mr. Kauffman are substantiated. He expressed the opinion that when more than $800,000 is being spent on a viaduct adequate for the heaviest loads should be built.

On suggestion of Councilman Edgar Watkins the committee decided to ask Mr. Harrington to come to Atlanta at once for a conference. The committee will then seek a joint session with the bond commission or its viaduct committee. It was indicated.

HARDING TO REFUSE RESERVE BOARD JOB

Asks That Name Be Eliminated From Those Under Consideration, Says Treasury Official.

Washington, January 4.—The name of W. P. G. Harding has been eliminated from those now under consideration for appointment to the governorship of the federal reserve board, it was said today by a high official of the treasury. It was said that Mr. Harding, a former board member, would enter private business.

The former reserve board head, it was stated, has let President Harding know that he does not desire to be given further consideration. While never an active candidate, Governor Harding was represented as having been heretofore willing to again take the governorship because of attacks which have been made on him.

The nomination of the new governor is expected to go to the senate, since elimination of Mr. Harding's name is regarded as likely to facilitate a selection.

No reason for the decision of the former governor to step aside was given at the treasury, although it was emphasized that Mr. Harding never made an active effort to secure reappointment to the place which he had filled continuously since the creation of the reserve system.

Mr. Harding is said to have several business propositions under consideration, each of which would take him back into private enterprise. It has been reported that he will become associated with an oil company as executive head of a merged corporation, but no definite statement is yet available concerning his plans.

Students Seek "Higher Education" From Gotham Thugs

Police Round Up Three Who Tired of Prosaic Subject at Schools.

New York, January 4.—Tired of a school which teaches only prosaic things, three boys, now under arrest, left and enrolled in a school kept by a master of pickpockets, thievery and general robbery, police said today. The boys practiced what they learned in the school and on elevated lines, the police assert, but all they got for their work was food, a pair of boxing gloves now and then, and a few clothes.

The trio landed in the police net last night when 20 officers surrounded an apartment house on the east side. The "fagin" who ran the pickpocket school escaped and headed for Longueville in a motor car.

One of the boys, Joseph Fink, just 14 years old, kept his own bachelor quarters, the police said. He lived in a water tank atop an Essex street apartment where, with a small stove, he cooked his ham and eggs, slept, and in general lived quite happily. The other two boys arrested are 12 and 15 years old.

CHAPMAN HEADS NEW TALIAFERRO COMMISSIONERS

Crawfordsville, Ga., January 4. (Special.)—The new county commissioners for Taliaferro county went into office Tuesday. Under an act of the legislature of last summer there are three instead of five commissioners. The present members of the board being W. C. Chapman, E. M. Taylor and J. V. Wayne. Mr. Chapman was elected chairman.

The retiring commissioners are T. L. Gunn, Dr. A. T. Ray, A. S. Lumsford, R. M. Moore and F. L. Asbury.

M. Coue, Apostle Of Auto-Suggestion, Arrives at New York

New York, January 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—Emile Coue, a smiling, active little man, with white hair and beard and sparkling blue eyes, once an obscure pharmacist who toyed with the mysteries of hypnosis in his tiny shop in Nancy, France, arrived in America on the Magestic an internationally famous figure, the apostle of the doctrine of self-suggestion through conscious auto-suggestion.

The little pharmacist, whose formula, "Day by day, in every way, I am growing better and better," has been repeated by disciples all over the world, hastened to announce that he did not want any sensationalism to attach to his methods and that he did not want it believed that he claimed to be able to effect cures of diseases.

"I have never cured anybody of any ailment in my life," he said, "and I have never made any such claim. I can succeed here, as I have many times in the past, in helping others to understand themselves and exercise their minds that they can improve their physical condition and achieve better health and happiness, then I shall have succeeded."

"It is so very easy to pass over the invisible line into sensationalism and to bring discredit to an otherwise sound and unassuming theory, that I would like to make a special appeal at the very beginning that my aims be not misunderstood."

M. Coue declared the purpose of his visit was to spread the knowledge and use of his doctrine in the United States. He hoped, however, soon to establish an authorized clinic in New York.

Successful combating of defects of character and of vicious habits such as drinking, Mr. Coue said, was one of the primary utilities of his method.

"My fondest desire," he asserted, "is to cause the introduction of my program of auto-suggestion into the medical schools of the United States. I want to see it introduced into all 'missions de correction' and prisons where I believe it will help greatly to cure criminal tendencies."

tee, declared that he thought a man competent for the position of chief can be found in the police department.

"I am sure that other members of the committee join me in saying that we should carefully investigate each officer displaying unusual qualities of a disciplinarian and organizer, we should elect him before going outside the force for a man," he said.

MAJOR A. L. PENDLETON, JR.
Holcomb Suggested.

It was persistently rumored that Captain A. J. Holcomb, in charge of the evening watch, is being seriously considered for chief.

Captain Holcomb is secretary and treasurer and the Police Relief association. He has been captain of the evening watch, regarded as the most important of the three watches, for several years.

Captain Holcomb has a spotless record of 22 years' service on the police department. He was elected to the force March 31, 1901, was promoted to sergeant February 14, 1911, and to his captaincy December 13, 1918. For several years he has served steadily without a vacation.

City hall figures considered it unlikely that Major Pendleton, commandant at Georgia Tech, would consent to heading the department were he offered the place even at a salary of $7,200 a year. He has been in the military service for many years and has indicated that he would not make a change for a position of a temporary nature.

Major Pendleton has said that under no circumstance would he become chief of police.

"Provided the office of police commissioner is created and it is offered me, and certain conditions I have in mind are met, in full I might give the matter consideration," he said.

Pendleton's Record.

The Tech commandant is in the artillery corps. He is only 36 years of age, and has been on duty at Tech since August 1, 1919.

He graduated from Annapolis in 1910, and served 18 months as a naval officer. In 1911 he resigned from the navy and by executive order of President Taft was transferred to the coast artillery corps. In 1915 he received his first commission as first lieutenant.

During the world war he participated in five major engagements. He assisted in the organization of the 26th division, the first fully organized division to arrive in France.

He is the son of Charles B. Pendleton, editor of the Key West (Fla.) Equator Democrat.

for the reason it is charged that Ware and his assistants merely "lifted" the bodies up and slipped the caskets out from under them, and did not take the bodies out of the graves. Judge Humphries also denied a motion to direct a verdict of acquittal for the same reason.

The defense Friday will ask postponement of trials of Thurman Jones and Claud Maddox, negro grave-diggers indicted with Ware, until the court of appeals acts on Ware's appeal. Assistant Solicitor General Ed Stephens stated Thursday that he was prepared to try these cases.

Witnesses on the stand Thursday gave the first official account of the coffin-snatching operations that have set the entire colored population of the town agog since Ware, Jones and Maddox were arrested in December. Judge Humphries' courtroom was packed with silent auditors, many of whom have relatives buried in Southview.

Jones and Maddox, the grave-diggers, and Lieutenant R. S. Jordan, of the county police, who directed the investigation that led to the arrest, all testified against Ware. Ware himself was the only witness presented by the defense. He called the testimony of his alleged confederates a bunch of lies intended to get him in trouble, and declared that his only experience in the used-casket business was the purchase of two used government caskets from one Willie Head in September. The caskets, he said Head had told him, were stored at the cemetery. Sidney Head, the sexton, denied that any caskets had ever been stored at the cemetery.

Tell Same Stories.
Stories of Jones and Maddox were the same in substance. They testified that last September Ware had hired them to dig up two caskets at $10 a casket, telling them that the caskets had only been rented for the funeral and that they belonged to him. The grave-diggers, they alleged, went out to the cemetery with Ware and the sexton after a funeral, when the sun had set, and dug down through the freshly turned earth until the coffin was reached. They lifted the corpse out of the casket and Ware pulled it out of the grave. The body was left in the plain pine box which is customary for the poor, and was lowered into a new grave to receive the casket, they added.

It is charged that more than 40 coffins were taken from Southview cemetery and resold by Ware. One especially ornate casket, it is charged, was sold, buried and dug up six times.

Lieutenant Jordan testified that he arrested Ware after dusk one evening last December as he was driving away from the cemetery with two caskets in his hearse, both of which are alleged to have been dug up from fresh graves.

NEGRO INSTITUTE MUST RAISE $1,462 OR CLOSE DOORS

According to a message to the public by R. D. Stinson, principal of the Norman and Industrial institute, a negro institution, the school will be closed unless $1,462.46 is raised by January 10, if $1,462.46 is not accounted for or paid to the executrix of the R. M. Walker estate. This is declared to be a worthy institution and a number of prominent Atlanta men have answered its appeal for help.

The principal's message follows: To the Public: The Atlanta Normal and Industrial institute, Griffin and Neal streets, has been informed that their property will be sold for sale on January 10, of $1,462.46 is not accounted for or paid to the executrix of the R. M. Walker estate.

When I received a letter from the Atlanta Normal and Industrial institute, I felt that I would be able to give satisfaction in some way and save this nucleus of education for negro masses of the south, chartered by nine of the most prominent white citizens of the state.

Mr. E. H. Inman, Mr. J. Epps Brown, Mr. John Manget, Mr. N. C. Daniels, the Atlanta Milling company have given $100 each to save the school and carry on the work and I hope to have the sympathy and cooperation of persons charitably inclined toward the negro and who sympathize with the masses who are seeking industrial education for the masses.

THE PARLEY ENDS!

The position of France in the parley of allied premiers, looking to the straightening out of the European reparations problem, was wholly untenable.

That France suffered more than any of the nations during the world war is conceded, not only in the reparations granted by the treaty of Versailles, but by popular opinion throughout the world.

That France has a right to be suspicious of Germany, which has been a menacing, and tormenting influence at her very doors for generations, is generally admitted.

That France was made to literally
"keep her own nose to the grindstone" in paying the demands of Germany for forty years, following the war of 1877, through which Alsace and Lorraine were also taken, is a matter of history.

But all of this does not justify a position today, in its unbending militancy, that can only result in the long run to France's own material disadvantage, and to the serious handicapping of all the other allied nations, the United States in particular, which has made no conquests in view, and entered the war purely for the preservation of world-wide democratic principles.

If a large industrial plant, employing thousands of people, whose consuming demands in turn sus-tain a community of business interests, should fall into financial difficulties, though its earning capacities are still acute, and its opportunities unimpaired except for finances, what is the wise and sane course on the part of its creditors?
To scrap the plant, thereby losing the most, is not all of their obligations? Or, to help it readjust its difficulties by which it could get back its trade, rehabilitate its fortunes, and pay its obligations—the creditors, by agreements, securing themselves in the premises.
There is an argument as to the course of business wisdom.

That is precisely the attitude of Germany, robbed of all sentiment, and the allies, holding reparations demands over her, should take the position that the wise creditor would take in the illustration cited.

It must not be overlooked that the Germany of today is not the Germany of Prussian militarism that was arrayed against the allies just four years ago.

That Germany died with the armistice; and the present government, of and for the people, is seeking, it claims, to reconstruct herself so that she may again take her place among the honored powers of the world.

With whatever charity we may give or refuse such protestations, it must not be forgotten that the war is over, and that Germany occupies a place of strategic importance in the commercial and economic relations of nations.

It is obvious that a rehabilitation of Germany cannot be successfully accomplished if Germany—the new Germany, striving to get to her feet—shall be crushed, her coal fields west of the Rhine seized, and the very vitals of her industrial life stripped from her.

If it could be of any service to France, acting as she is with an ancient enmity that is robbing her even now of her better judgment, the situation might be different,
though this we do not concede;
but as it is, with the nations of Europe, excepting Great Britain, bankrupt, as they admit in discussion their war obligations to this country, it cannot be other than the course of business folly, independent of any sentiments of humanity, to permit France to appease an old, unreconstructed grudge—not unprovoked though it be—at the expense of the best material interests of the whole world.

The position of Great Britain, as voiced by Premier Bonar Law, was questionably the correct one, justified by all the rules of safe and sound business principles. That the parley should end in a deadlock rather than Great Britain weakening in that firm and commendable position, was the course of wisdom.

What the premiers should do, instead of straining the relations among themselves and dissolving their treaty alliances, is to defer any action or reparations until a conference of international financial experts, as suggested by Secretary Hughes, and in which the United States shall participate, may meet, survey the situation and present its findings.

The United States is vitally concerned in the final outcome of these reparation questions for the very good reason that it is the one creditor nation among the allies, having the staggering sum of $14,000,000, 000 due by these governments.
Therefore, all reparations revolve around these obligations, of necessity, and no definite step should be taken to which the United States is not a satisfied party.

It is encouraging to see the change of attitude in these matters on the part of this government, and a spirit of its friendly co-operation and good offices in settling the European house in order will mean much toward a restoration of amicable trade relations between all nations—so essential to this nation which is distinctively a producing nation that can maintain the balance of trade only through the ability of overseas nations to buy its products.

GOOD FOR HARDING!

President Harding should be commended for his firm and courageous vetting of the Bursum bill, which granted larger blanket increases to those on the civil and Mexican federal pension rolls.

The pension question has always been a big stick over congress, where political experiences too frequently override wisdom and prudence, just as it has been in the various states, and especially in Georgia.

The consequence has been that the whole federal pension system has become little less than a national scandal. The Bursum bill, which undoubtedly passed congress with the usual wave of sentiment, coupled with the usual apprehension as to the political effect of opposition, not only opened the floodgates of the treasury, already burdened with the debts of war, but created additional incentives for financial and moral abuses of the system to a degree that would have sooner or later astounded the nation.

The act made no pretense of new consideration for the indigent—the needy and the dependent—and no new consideration for the actual veteran of the war, who fought and bled and whose body is bent with age and weakened with infirmities, but on the other hand it actually extended the marriage period to July 1915, and even provided that after that date "any marriage or cohabitation for two years prior to a veteran's death shall make the widow the beneficiary of a pension of $50 a month for the balance of her life."

The present law has been the vehicle of one of the greatest scandals ever perpetrated upon this or any government.
It fixes the marriage date at June 27, 1905—forty odd years after the surrender, and thousands of comparatively young women are today on the pension rolls of the government who were born twenty and more years subsequent to the civil war, and who were attracted to their marriages with the old veterans through the "easy money" rewards of the federal pension laws.

If some of the governors of states that go wild in pensioning the young widows of feeble old veterans, who were designedly inveigled, in the days of their age-weariness, would use the veto as courageously as did President Harding this great cancer in our national life would soon be cured.

The nation cannot do too much for the needy old veterans. The states, particularly in the south where the veterans of the gray have no federal pension, cannot do too much in pensioning their needy old veterans. God bless them!

But there is no sense in encouraging a system of widespread scandal by giving free reins to every pension sentimentalist that comes along.

The Indianapolis News thinks that "those severe storms on the Atlantic may be induced in part by the presence there of Ambassador Harvey, with his mind full of the complications of European politics."

While it may not be a good thing, still there isn't enough cash left over from Christmas, with some of us, to attract the bandit of the highway and the midnight burglar.

The New Year story they're raising on all the hustling ways, is "Keep the fire blazing by helping it to blaze!"

A Witch-Song.

The witches have not left us.
One comes,
each morning bright,
And creeps 'round the household,
And coaxes all the light we see never know it's morning—
For that dark witch of the night!

The little children, dreaming—
By their mothers rocked to sleep—
Shiver, in their black shadows,
And close for comfort creep.
The witch derives their dream, then,
For they dream they wake to weep.

They hold and hover the poor,
Then crouch, in their black shadows,
Where they shall come no more—Shall this thing be forever,
When God stands at the door?

Friends With Sunshine.

Sunshine, after all the storm,
O'er the meadows streaming;
In our faces we shall not weep
Lead us to sweet dreaming.
Thank the Lord! For all His power
He commands the Sun once more.

We, that shiver on the ways,
Rags around us waving,
In our faces we shall not weep
For his sunlight saving;
Thank Him that in sunny lands
We can warm our hearts and hands.

Let the rich their fires keep!
Other joys have crowned us;
In our faces we shall not weep
With God's sun around us.
Even for all His shivering poor
God commands His Sun once more.

GLYCERIN.

Glycerin is made by decomposing and distilling fats. It has an affinity for water and mixes freely with water in all proportions. Glycerin applied pure, absorbs water from the skin and soothes. Taken internally it is a cathartic, acting like salts, by extracting water from the lining of the stomach and bowel and so increasing the action of the bowels.

A mixture of equal parts of glycerin, water and lemon juice is an excellent mouthwash in sickness when the mouth becomes sore and dry.

chapping and for redness and roughness of the hands. This lotion has given much satisfaction:

The tragacanth should be purchased in scales or shavings, and the powdered article is often adulterated. The mixture must be boiled with constant stirring, until it becomes a clear thin jelly, and water added to make up the quantity. A few drops of this lotion should be applied to the hands two or three times a day, after washing and before the hands are quite dry.

Glycerin is an important ingredient of Old Doctor Brady's Astringent Foot Proof Cough Remedy. Here it is:

Irritate of soda, 1 ounce; glycerin,
1 ounce; juice of one lemon, 1 whole flaxseed, 1 teaspoonful; water, 1 teaspoonful; of pepper, 4 drops.
Steep the flaxseed (do not boil) in the water 20 minutes. Strain and add the other ingredients. Dose, for adults, a tablespoonful, for a child, a teaspoonful, every two hours for two days. No good after two days. Good first aid medicine for any acute medicine for any acute medicine for cold or influenza is consulted.

I conservatively estimate that this home remedy for so-called "coughs and colds" has saved a vast number of lives in the years I have been recommending it—the lives of folks who might have otherwise tried some thing guaranteed to cure a cold in 24 hours or break it into smither-eens.

Recently The Constitution received

Plan to Connect
Every County Seat
In South Carolina

Columbia, S. C., January 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—Approving a proposal for a $50,000,000 road bond issue, the Langley committee appointed at the recent state-wide highway conference here, today voted to recommend a program calling for the building of a state system of permanent highways, which would connect every county seat.

The committee endorsed a resolution to provide for a sinking fund to retire the bonds and for the annual maintenance of the highways by a 3 cents a gallon tax on gasoline, all of which should go to this program, a 100 per cent increase in the motor vehicle license fees and probably a tax on lubricating oil used in motor vehicles.

To provide for expansion of the highway system before money from the sale of bonds could be secured—a period estimated at two years—the committee unanimously voted to recommend the 3 cents gasoline tax and the higher license fee would bring in a total annual revenue of $5,000,000. The proposed scale of licenses would be approximately the same as the present North Carolina scale, according to information given the committee.

Recommendations of the Langley committee, of which A. B. Langley, of Columbia, a member of the state highway committee, is chairman, will be submitted to the good roads conference which has been called for next Thursday, for approval, and if the committee report is adopted, the plan will be set before the general assem-

Just in Passing!

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

The farmers of the south have been "fed-up" on propaganda regarding the boll weevil and boll weevil control.
It has been and is a fertile field for personal exploitation and for capitalizing and "cashing in" on various and sundry schemes for annihilating the pest; and literally millions of dollars have been wasted by cotton planters in listening to these get-rich-quick "benefactors."

The unvarnished truth is, the farmer needs less propaganda, and the application of more common sense and more energy and more will-power and more system in his operations.
The United States has carried on,
and is today conducting one of the largest and best equipped boll weevil research institutions in the country, under the direction of practical entomologists who know the cotton producing business from long years of close contact.

It is useless to talk of the practical benefits that may be derived from any other independent or extensive private researches.
If there is a man in the country who ever thinks he has a remedy for boll weevil, physical, chemical, mechanical, or what not, the laboratory at Tallulah, La., will conduct the most complete and thorough investigations at the government's expense and determine correctly and without temporizing just what may be expected of the suggestion.

It is not seeking to popularize any one program. It is seeking to get the most practical and the most economical relief for the cotton farmer.
In the meantime it has already been demonstrated beyond challenge that the boll weevil can be controlled, and even more cotton to a given acre can be produced, by a practical system of intense cultivation, plus sufficient calcium arsenate to hold down infestation when the latter becomes threatening.

The processes of cultivation and poisoning must be co-ordinated, as the poisoning alone can be of no material aid if the farmer does not push his cotton to an early maturity through a system of better farming than under the old plan of forty acres and a mule.

These rules of reason have been published time and time again through The Constitution, and thousands of farmers in the cotton belt this year turned their operations to the right side of the ledger by applying them.

In the fall the stalks should be turned under and the fields planted in winter cover.
Hibernating haunts must be destroyed, as the over-winter weevil is the real menace.

The cotton fields should be well drained and segregated from woodland as much as practicable.
The seed beds must be prepared with extreme care.

Only pedigreed, early maturing seed should be planted. These should be as quickly as seasonably safe.
Four to six hundred pounds of fertilizers should be used to the acre, ordinarily speaking, and the formula should be determined by the character of the soil.

The cotton should be cultivated on the basis of 5 to 10 acres to the plow, and thus the cultivation kept continuous and unending until harvest season.
Dusting with arsenate should be undertaken when the infestation reaches 10 per cent, and kept up according to the prescribed program of the state board of entomology.

The farmer should then pick from 1,000 to 1,500 pounds of seed cotton from each acre thus cultivated, in spite of the boll weevil.

These are rules backed by the experience of thousands of farmers in the early paths of weevil panic, who have regained their old time, pro-weevil production—and they are rules that all the propaganda on each, and personal and money-raising exploitations cannot improve upon.

By reducing cotton acreage to a basis necessary under a system of intense cultivation the surplus acreage of the farm can be used for growing food and feed crops and other local market crops that can always be made profitable—especially those convertible into meat.

It is only by this system of making cotton a surplus that the farmer can regain his old-time independence, and while there is no disposition on the part of The Constitution to discourage propaganda, the practical, common sense side of the question must not be overshadowed.

Recently The Constitution received the following letter which it appreciated because it showed an earnest disposition to get to the bottom of the postoffice department on the item of manufacturing mail sacks was announced today in a statement from Washington, released through Postmaster E. K. Large Thursday.

Canvas duck, large used in making mail sacks and pouches, was manufactured at the Atlanta Federal penitentiary. A total of 1,319,213 containers was manufactured during the year as compared with 706,001 for 1921.

The average cost of the individual container for 1921 was $2.11, as compared with $1.15 each for 1922. At most double the number manufactured in 1921 were needed to handle the increased mail of 1922, but the entire number of containers cost only $1, 551,504.85, or just $0.92284 more than the cost of a little more than half that many in 1921.

One instance of saving in cost of manufacture of mail pouches is a recent arrangement whereby the material made at the Federal prison is transported to Washington without cost. Paul Henderson, second postmaster general, put into effect this saving shortly after his visit to Atlanta a few weeks ago.

Hitherto, the canvas had been sent to Washington by freight, but now Henderson's visit, he called attention to the unused space in mail cars going north. The government has to pay for the space, and due to the fact that there is more mail coming south than going north, the northbound cars have space which is not used.

The result of this observation was that the change was made in sending the canvas, and now a truck delivers the goods to the station where it is loaded in space which would otherwise be left unused, thereby saving all freight charges.

BELL TELEPHONE EMPLOYEES ELECT
OFFICERS FOR 1923

E. T. Satcher, of Thomasville, Ga., was elected division chairman of the division of the Southern Bell Telephone company at the annual election held Wednesday afternoon.
Others elected were:
Commercial department, W. T.
Harris, Savannah, Ga.; T. L. Kirby,
Atlanta, Ga.; J. M. Remley, Macon, Ga.

Plant department, R. O. Thompson, Rome, Ga.; P. A. Montgomery, Macon, Ga.; E. L. Deutz, Atlanta, Ga.
Traffic department, Miss L. Kerr, Augusta, Ga.; Miss S. Purvis, Savannah, Ga.; Mrs. Nellie Gilroy, Atlanta, Ga.

The election was made necessary by reason of establishment of state headquarters in Atlanta and Birmingham. The election was held in Georgia and Alabama, which had formerly composed one division.
The association is composed of employees of the Southern Bell Telephone company and delegates from the company's offices in all sections of Georgia were present.

NEW FERTILIZER RATE IS FOUGHT
BY COAST LINE

A petition for an injunction to prevent the public service commission of Georgia from putting into effect a rate on fertilizer materials between the cities of Savannah and Black-shear, Ga., said to be "preferential," was filed in the United States district court Thursday by the Atlantic Coast Line railroad.

A rate of 90 cents a ton on fertilizer materials between the two cities was fixed in an order from the commission on December 9, 1922.
The rate is contrary to the best interests of both intrastate and interstate commerce in that it is understandably to specific localities.

The petition charges that the rate is unjust in that it denies the Atlantic Coast Line railroad a fair return on its investment, and that it is contrary to the best interests of both intrastate and interstate commerce in that it is understandably to specific localities.

"MOON-SHINE" IN NAVY
Youths With Peculiar Name Combination Enlist.

Oscar E. Moon and Selmon J.
Shine, hailing from Columbus, joined the navy in Atlanta Thursday.
The entry on their enlistment records,
"Moon-Shine," attracted marked attention among the recruiting officers, who, loath to separate the "combination" of the two names, decided to make a special training camp.

RED CROSS WORKERS AID FIRE SUFFERERS

Red Cross relief work at New Bern, N. C., in connection with the recent conflagration that made 3,500 people homeless, is progressing satisfactorily, according to Joseph H. Logan, division manager for the Red Cross with headquarters in Atlanta.

Mr. Logan said that families are being handled in such a manner as to make it possible for them to help themselves and that wage earners in the devastated area are being given permanent employment.

ARKWRIGHT MEMBER NATIONAL COMMITTEE

Announcement has been received in Atlanta of the appointment of Prestos
K. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Railway and Power company, as a member of the 1923 committee on national relations and the 1923 committee on publicity of the American Electric Railway association. Mr.
Arkwright also is a member of the executive committee of the National Electric Light association.

Six hundred men joined the marines at the Atlanta recruiting headquarters during 1922. Captain George Bower, local recruiting officer, stated Thursday.

More than 3,000 men applied for enlistment, all but those accepted being rejected because of physical defects. Bad hearing was said to be the principal cause for rejection of applicants. Those who were successful in entering the service have been transferred to points in all parts of the world. Several Atlantans and Georgians are now stationed in China, and points in Asia.

MISTAKES OF THE KAISER

AN ANSWER TO THE KAISER'S MEMOIRS

By RENE VIVIANI

Premier of France When the War Broke Out

Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution

WHAT IS GOING TO HAPPEN?

And now comes a strange and inexplicable thing—or, perhaps a one but too easily explained. Austria refuses even to discuss with Russia! The duplicity of the two governments became apparent; Germany, in order not to assume the responsibility, since she is not directly concerned with the refusal to discuss does not oppose the discussion, yet Austria continues to refuse. Who can possibly believe that she has plucked up courage enough to refuse to follow the advice of a Germany, who is irritated at her conduct?

What is going to happen? Under what kind of regime of silence and error is the world to live? No general conference, no private conference? What then?

Austria will give us the answer.

After having mobilized secretly for some time, she suddenly declares war against Serbia, on the 28th of July. On the same day—a ridiculous thing indeed—the Serbian minister at Rome had told the Italian minister of foreign affairs, the Marquis of San Giuliano, "that if some explanations should be given as to the manner in which Austrian officials might participate, the Serbian government might yet accept the entire Austrian note." (Origins of the World War, Bazarque, page 182.) The Marquis of San Giuliano transmits this information to Sir Edward Grey, and, foreseeing with admirable perspicacity that Austria would laughingly refuse to have any dealings with Serbia, if she were given the chance to have them, he suggested that Austria might make her reply to the other nations and then communicate with Serbia.

At noon, war against Serbia!—and, on that same day, Serbia accepting all Austria's terms! The whole matter hinged on the interpretation of one word! Though Austria has certainly paid heavily for what she did, one must needs admit that the crime merited the punishment.

SERBIA OVERWHELMED.
Serbia, overwhelmed on the evening of the 28th by an ultimatum that burst upon her like a cannon ball, and, compelled, on the 29th, to withdraw her government from Belgrade, under the terms of the ultimatum, made efforts—alas, how weak they were!—to protect herself at the same time that she took this preliminary step. Her soil was invaded, Belgrade was bombarded and soon captured.

What are we to do?—address an ultimatum to Austria and demand that she drop the pretence for the sake of her recent statements informing us that she dreamed of no conquests? Not for an instant did we harbor such an idea. England and France, Russia, even though Russia's Slavie sentiments had been aroused and Austria had taken the initiative in mobilizing against her—all three of these nations acquiesced in the occupation of Serbia by Austria.

Sir Edward Grey, in agreement with us, proposed that this demand be considered as satisfying the demands of Austria and he prepared the way for an arrangement (Blue Book, 76 et seq.). King George telegraphed on July 30 to Prince Henry of Prussia ("J'accuse," page 116). Finally, M. Sazonoff suggested to the German ambassador at St. Petersburg, in the course of a triple interview, that he draw up a note, which the latter took away in writing ("J'accuse," page 117).

As Serbia, then, was invaded on July 28, and Belgrade bombarded, and, after these acts of violence, all of us got together to sanction the Austrian occupation of Serbia, but to request, notwithstanding that it stop where it was, that it be deemed sufficient, and that military preparations in all countries cease.

What was to become of the conciliatory proposals of Sir Edward Grey and M. Sazonoff? What happened now was due to Herr von Jagow.

He was notified, on July 30, by the Russian minister at Berlin and by his own ambassador at St. Petersburg, of Sazonoff's proposal. He spurned it, remarking that "it was impossible for Austria to accept it." (Orange Book, No. 63.) Did he consult Austria? He refused to do so. On that day, he opened the way to slaughter, called down death upon millions of homes, and as will be shown shortly, did not stop even there. We shall cite his conversation a few hours later with M. Jules Cambon on the same subject. And yet he was, so it seems, minister of foreign affairs!

Yet nothing was yet entirely lost for us. We continued to discuss up to the very threshold of the battle-field, until the machine guns crackled on our frontiers along the destroyed railway lines.

The possibilities of rapid concentration vary naturally in different countries. Two days, or even less, sufficed in Germany—which, moreover, thanks to legislation unknown to other lands, did not mobilize until the existence of a danger of war had been declared, so that mobilization was a mere formality. Two or three days would be required for a concentration in Austria, the same in France, probably less in Switzerland (I speak hypothetically for the purpose of contrasting a country of more rapid concentration with other countries). And in any case, 10 days would be required in Russia.

One can realize without the slightest difficulty that, given such a state of affairs—with Serbia at war and invaded and the Austrian army partially concentrated on her frontier—Russia could not hesitate; confronted as she was by peril enhanced by the well-known slowness of her concentration, she was forced to meet the partial mobilization of Austria by partial mobilization of her own forces.

WHAT COULD AUSTRIA SAY?

Russia confined herself to mobilizing in four military zones: Odessa, Kiev, Moscow and Kazan. At the same time, M. Sazonoff announced through the Russian ambassador at Vienna "that these precautionary measures were not aimed in the slightest against Austria and did not imply in the slightest aggressive measures against Austria."

What more could aggressive Austria ask and what could she say after she had taken the initiative, as she did?

She said nothing. But the extraordinary thing—or perhaps the one not too easily to be understood—was what Germany did. Germany had announced, on July 27, through Herr von Jagow, to the British ambassador "that if Russia mobilized only in the south Germany would not mobilize." (Yellow Book, 67.) This was quite normal, since what objection could Germany make to a mobilization that did not affect her? Yet, when this mobilization occurred, Herr von Jagow simulated indignation. M. Jules Cambon remarked to him in diplomatic language that he was not consistent. But Herr von Jagow apologized for having revealed an agreement which had been known in Russia and might have served to reassure the Russian government somewhat, and alleged in explanation of his later attitude, insistence on the part of the German general staff (Yellow Book, No. 119).

This shows how all had been prepared and how a minister who wishes to go back on his word needs merely to hide beyond a general staff whose alleged acts cannot be verified either in its own country and which can be easily employed as a useful screen for lies. Moreover, as will be shown subsequently, there was no such insistence on the part of the German general staff—in any event, it yielded.

Thus, while Austria made no protest against the mobilization, Germany adopted a menacing attitude, sword in hand. Count Pourtales, her ambassador at St. Petersburg, notified M. Sazonoff that if Russia did not stop her military preparations, the German army would be mobilized. That was in the afternoon and not in the evening as Count Pourtales claims. He made two visits: One in the daytime (at about 10 o'clock, afternoon), the other at night. The reason for this will be shown.

M. Sazonoff feels the catastrophe approaching. The mobilization of the 5th of July and explained by the emperor to his ambassador at Vienna (see preceding chapter)—"it is necessary to have the full responsibility fall upon Russia!" is about to be struck. Even assuming that Russia yield, Austria will be enabled to invade Russia, as she had invaded Serbia, since it is to be noted that Germany, of course, did not say anything to Austria concerning the latter's mobilization.

This terrible juncture M. Sazonoff turns to me, evincing indescribable emotion. He informed me, during the night of July 29-30, at 2 o'clock, by means of a dispatch communicated to me at my home by M. de Marguerite, "that he is confronted with an imminent war and asks whether he can count on the support of France as an ally and whether England can without delay join Russia and France."

After having called upon M. Poincaré at 3 o'clock in the morning, I made the following reply: "France is resolved to fulfill all her obligations as an ally and she will, moreover, spare no effort toward avoiding the conflict in the interests of general peace. The mobilization begun among the powers less directly interested allows the continuance of hope that peace may be preserved. I therefore deem it advisable that, whatever measures of precaution or defence Russia feels obliged to take, she shall not take any immediate action which may serve as a pretext to Germany for complete or partial mobilization of her forces."

What other reply could French pride make? With two nations arrayed against her, Russia, despite all concession on her part, stood alone exposed to every blow. The alliance was in jeopardy. What was happening was the fruition of that plan which I have already laid bare. Either to have war, or bring about the destruction of the Franco-Russian alliance, with Russia abandoned on the one hand, and on the other, France faithful to her signature, and, subsequently, herself a victim, in her isolation, of a German fury which nothing could offset—dishonor and punishment at one and the same time!

I waited, my eyes fixed on the dark horizon. But a surprise was in store for me. It came in a dispatch, from the French ambassador at St. Petersburg which notified me that the German ambassador had renewed his demands upon M. Sazonoff, but had couched them in much less extreme terms.

So far was he from maintaining the brutal tone of the ultimatum of a few hours before that he took it up this time in a gentler manner and left M. Sazonoff after a discussion conducted politely. He took with him upon his departure, after having taken it down from dictation, M. Sazonoff's proposal (already mentioned by me) to hold a four-cornered discussion, which was delivered by him to Herr von Jagow, and which Herr von Jagow found unacceptable some time later.

HEALING TAUGHT IN SCRIPTURES, SAYS LECTURER

Dr. E. L. House lectured Thursday at the North Avenue Presbyterian church. His afternoon subject was "Turning to the Infinite," and the evening topic was "Spiritual Versus Mental Healing."

During the course of his Wednesday afternoon lecture, Dr. House said: "I have no doubt that the language of the Bible is that healing powers are potentially in all Christ's followers, and that the church in particular is to be the media thereof. Today there is a demand that the church shall restore the power of healing."

His subject at the evening lecture Wednesday was "The Drama of the Face."

"The face we have at 15 years of age is the one that nature provided; the one we have at 50 is the one we made ourselves. Every young person's face is a prophecy and every old person's face is history."

KENYON TO AVOID FORTUNE TELLERS, HE TELLS POLICE

A. L. Kenyon, who works for the Rice and Hutchins shoe company, 90 South Pryor street, will beware of fortune tellers in the future.

Thursday morning a "gypsy maid" called to tell his fortune. After she departed, Mr. Kenyon told detectives, the cash drawer was found to contain just $55 less than when she entered. He furnished the officers a description of the woman.

Lawton Nalley, well known attorney, is trying to locate the thief who "borrowed" his overcoat from his office at 421 Conally building Thursday.

Other robberies reported to the police were the burglary of two grocery stores and the theft of a quantity of clothing from homes.

The stores entered were L. W. Rogers company, 60 Lee street, and W. M. Sullivan, 109 Chestnut street. The Rogers store was approximately 180 pounds of flour, 11 buckets of lard, 200 pounds of sugar and a case of chewing tobacco were taken.

Sullivan reported the loss of 96 pounds of flour, a quantity of canned goods, apples, oranges and other articles.

A quantity of wearing apparel was stolen from the home of R. L. Bradley, 328 Ponce de Leon avenue. G. J. O'Hara, 24 Walker street, reported the theft of an overcoat, which contained the key to his auto and a pair of gloves in a pocket.

GENERAL H. M. LORD TO ATTEND DINNER GIVEN TO CANDLER

General H. M. Lord, director of the budget; Senator-elect W. F. George, and John McE. Bowman, hotel magnate, will be among the distinguished guests at the testimonial dinner to be tendered Asa G. Candler in commemoration of his 50th anniversary as an Atlanta business man next Tuesday by the presidents' club, according to F. J. Paxton, who is in charge of arrangements.

Reservations have been made by 400 persons and the guest list has been closed. The dinner will be held at the Piedmont Driving club at 7 o'clock.

H. E. Moody, president of the Atlanta Association of Georgia railroads, announced that the meeting of the credit men's organization, which had been scheduled for that date, has been postponed because of the approaching dinner to Mr. Candler, until Wednesday, January 10.

WITHHOLDS DECISION ON ARLINGTON DEPOT

The Arlington depot case was taken under advisement by Judge W. D. Ellis after a hearing Thursday afternoon.

The Central of Georgia railroad is asking injunction against the Georgia Public Service commission's order that a new depot be built at Arlington. Judge Ellis will announce his decision in a few days after he has viewed all the papers in the case.

CHANGES ARE MADE IN REVENUE OFFICE

Collector Rose Announces Promotions, Transfers and Appointments.

Two promotions, four transfers and appointment of six new deputies were announced by Internal Revenue Collector Josiah T. Rose, Thursday, Jan. 4. J. B. Kieffer, division chief with headquarters at Savannah, was promoted to chief field deputy of the Atlanta office, and N. N. Granger, acting chief field deputy, Atlanta, was appointed to assistant chief field deputy.

O. L. Barnwell was transferred from the Atlanta office to Gainesville, Ga., and A. A. Cook was transferred from Savannah to Atlanta. Dave Reese was transferred from Gainesville to Columbus, and L. R. Griner was transferred from Columbus to Dublin.

The following new deputies were named: G. A. Anderson, of Calhoun, Ga., assigned to Rome, Ga.; E. J. Lunsford, of Chatsworth, Ga., assigned to Atlanta, Ga.; R. J. Murch, of Thomasville, Ga., assigned to Savannah, Ga.; E. L. Stringer, of Marietta, Ga., assigned to Atlanta, Ga.; H. C. Taylor, of Marshallville, Ga., assigned to Macon, Ga.; C. R. Thomas, of Lawrenceville, Ga., assigned to Atlanta.

Work of both the field forces and the office forces of the department in Georgia was highly commended by Collector Rose, along with the announcements. The field forces in Georgia lent all the first so-called states in November, he stated.

ROYER RE-ELECTED AS ATLANTA HOTEL MEN'S PRESIDENT

W. C. Royer, manager of the Piedmont hotel, was re-elected president, Fred Hensler, secretary-treasurer and George Middlebrooks, general counsel of the Atlanta Hotel Men's association at the annual meeting and banquet of the association held Thursday in the Piedmont hotel. J. F. DeArnette, who recently returned to Atlanta as manager of the Cecil hotel after several months in Birmingham, was elected vice president.

The meeting was the nineteenth annual session of the organization, which was organized in 1904. Will V. Zimmer, former hotel man, organizer and first president of the association, was the only charter member at the meeting. He presented a gold mounted fountain pen to President Royer as a token of esteem from the association. Henry R. Durand, Ralph Van Landingham, Harry Silverman and James F. Hickey were the other original members.

The business session and election followed an elaborate dinner tendered to the association by President Royer. The hotel men present included Mr. Royer, P. C. Steele, assistant manager of the Piedmont; George Keen, of the Kimball; Frank T. Reynolds, of the Ansley; Homer A. Tisdell, of the Aragon; A. B. Moody, of the Wincoff, and George H. Brown, of the Marion and Hampton hotels. Twelve hotels, one club and one restaurant are represented in the membership of the association.

VOTAW WILL ATTEND PAROLE MEETING HERE

H. H. Votaw, United States federal prison chief and a brother-in-law of President Harding, is expected to visit Atlanta the last of this week for the purpose of holding a parole meeting at the Atlanta prison and attending the trials of three former guards of the prison charged with violating the narcotic law, the cases being on the calendar for the special adjourned session of the district court which starts Monday.

Several months ago when the federal prison code probe was started, Mr. Votaw came to Atlanta and joined in the investigations with District Attorney Clint W. Hager and J. E. Dyche, warden at the prison.

WHISKY-LADEN CAR SEIZED BY OFFICERS

Just before daybreak Thursday morning Call Officers Odus Hewell and John D. Woods captured a touring car which, it is claimed, contained 125 gallons of corn whisky. The machine was found by the officers in the Auto Hotel, 127 Ivy street, when they were searching for a stolen car.

RED MEN'S AUXILIARY TO INSTALL OFFICERS

Annual installation of officers of Silver Cloud council, Degree of Poo-hontas, an auxiliary of the improved Order of Red Men, will take place tonight at the Red Men's wigwam on Central avenue.

ODD FELLOW OFFICERS TO MEET IN ATLANTA

A conference of the grand lodge and grand encampment officers of the I. O. O. F. in the southeastern states has been called for Atlanta by Judge Lucian J. Eastin, sovereign grandmaster of the grand lodge of Odd Fellows. The meeting will be held January 8 and 9 at the city auditorium.

GEORGIA COTTON GROWERS HOLD IMPORTANT MEET

Discussion of plans for a renewal of resignations of C. W. Hillhouse, of resignations of C. W. Hillhouse, of Sylvester, and J. O. Maner, of Millhaven, as directors of the association, and addresses by J. J. Brown, commissioner of agriculture, and J. Phil Campbell, head of extension department of the State College of Agriculture, were the principal features at a meeting of the Georgia Cotton Growers' association Thursday at the Kimball house.

Both Commissioner Brown and Mr. Campbell pledged the support of their departments in the co-operative work of the organization. Mr. Hillhouse said that changes in his business plans necessitated his resignation, and Mr. Mather stated that he was retiring because he intended to move to Florida.

NEGRO PORTER JAILED ON CHARGE OF THEFT

A parcel post package containing "silver things" was the cause of the downfall of Ernest Johnson, negro porter at the Terminal station, who is booked to face United States Commissioner Carter Friday morning.

L. M. Lallenstet, a transfer clerk of the railway mail service, observed Johnson making his getaway with a package under his coat, it is said. The clerk gave chase and captured Johnson, but not before the package had been thrown in behind some baggage at the Terminal station.

The package was identified as a parcel post shipment of silk goods, and Johnson was held, taken to the Tower and will be brought before Commissioner Carter for a hearing Friday morning.

Something Worth Reading

Athens, Tenn.—"I suffered from chronic bronchitis for six years and when I had the 'flu' in 1919, my cough grew worse. I soon developed asthma. I suffered terribly and was sure I had consumption. I had a very bad cough, could not sleep at night and had pains in my breast and shoulders. Also my arms would be numb. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Announcement to Poultry Raisers

VITALITY Egg Mash is now made under Mr. Angell's Original Formula, improved with buttermilk. It is the result of years of practical poultry experience with every known formula and ingredient. It will positively produce more eggs at less cost than any food known—whether manufactured or made at home.

Feed it alongside of any other mash you may select and the results will amaze you. It is the cheapest in price because it produces more eggs.

It must be the main feed of the day and kept constantly before the fowls in the Vitality Self-Feeder—nothing mixed with it, and nothing fed besides Four-O-Clock Scratch Grains as an evening meal at four o'clock. To accomplish the most in production, a hen must consume a greater amount of mash than grain; in fact, twice as much mash. Therefore, see to it that the mash hoppers are always full and that nothing else is used that will "stall" the hens.

Be sure the signature of Albert Angell, Jr., is on every sack of Vitality Feed, with our guarantee of absolute satisfaction when fed according to directions.

Petrova and Great Cast Offer Treat to Atlantans

When an actress who has made her greatest reputation upon the silver screen, in the silent art of the motion picture, at last appears in flesh and blood and displays her real ability as an emotional portrayeur of a powerful character in the legitimate theater, it is customary for the reviewer to introduce his remarks with a regret that such talent has been wasted upon the screen.

That is one introduction, however, that will not be used in writing this story. For Olga Petrova, who opened a three-day and matinee engagement in "The White Peacock," at the Atlanta theater Thursday night, undoubtedly owes a large part of her undoubtedly wonderful technique to her experiences in the picture studios. Her work in the play was beyond question far greater than it would have been had she not been forced, in the silent drama, to depend upon pantomime alone to carry over the emotions she was called upon to display.

Pantomime is, after all, the foundation of the actor's art. Without pantomime, acting becomes mere recitation. With mediocre pantomime we are presented with mediocre performance, no matter how magnetic the performer's personality, how charming the timbre of the voice and how alluring the personal appearance. But with competent pantomime, the playwright's creation becomes living flesh and blood and the audience forgets itself in living the drama upon the stage.

"The White Peacock" is a play of situations which are rare upon the modern stage. The first act presents a shock almost with its opening lines, and the first curtain drops upon a scene which certainly wins the audience's sympathy to put it very mildly. The play throughout deals with a subject which is usually referred to, alike in private as in public, in subdued tones, and is rarely discussed seriously. The subject is the infidelity of a roue husband and a wife's revolt. The play frankly and daringly probes into this domestic wound without hesitation.

Of the three acts, the third and last presents the finest opportunity to Madame Petrova and furnishes a gripping few minutes while the audience is hanging onto its seats with an intensity of interest remarkable—especially for an Atlanta audience.

Madame Petrova is just as beautiful in the flesh as we have known her in pictures. Even the ladies present were enraptured with her appearance and at least two of her gowns brought forth gasps of admiration and, maybe, little twinges of envy.

Of her supporting company, all were adequate and it is perhaps unadvisable to pick a few for mention. But it is impossible to forget the work of Mr. McCollum, as Rafael Rodriguez, the professional murderer. Until the big scene in the final half of the last act, his work had stood out as a remarkably clever "bit." But in those last few minutes, he took to himself a position in the cast which ranked second in importance only to that of the star herself.

Mitchell Harris, in the leading male role, made a handsome and convincing lover, while Robert Brister, as the villainous husband, was every inch a Spanish grandee.

Of course, everyone is going to attend either today's performance, or one of Saturday's two. The drawing power of the star assures that. But, it is pleasant to know that they will see, in addition to a charming, beautiful and accomplished woman, a play that is intensely interesting, stage settings that are a production that is beyond criticism in most every respect.

POPULAR WGM STAR RETURNS FROM TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Eakin have returned to their home in Atlanta after a six-weeks' visit to Miami, after other points in Florida. The trip was made by automobile and was a delightful and interesting one. Most of the time was spent in Miami where they stopped at the Urney hotel.

As Rieley Eakin, Mrs. Eakin will be remembered by radio fans of the nation for her wonderful dramatic soprano voice. She has appeared at WGM on many occasions and enjoys a popularity with fans of this station.

This talented singer is known to thousands of Atlantans as a feature of Howard theater productions each week. Next week she will sing "My Hero" from the Chocolate Soldier, featured in the showing of the marvelous photograph "Kick In."

Rieley Eakin's radio offerings are exclusively through WGM and no more popular artist was ever heard at this station than this talented and widely known star who will sing again for WGM fans at an early date.

Dancer Faces Perjury Charge In Whitney Suit

NYack, N. Y., January 4.—Miss Evan Burrows Fontaine, dancer, and her mother face indictment for perjury in connection with the dancer's $1,000,000 breach of promise suit against Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, son of Harry Payne Whitney.

Justice Tompkins, of the state supreme court, in sustaining charges of fraud made by Whitney and vacating the annulment of the dancer's marriage to that of Adair, of Waco, Texas, ordered the district attorney of Rockland county to take all records in the suit before the grand jury with a view to indicting the dancer and her mother.

He also recommended that the New York Bar association investigate the practices of Charles Firestone, of New York, and Mount Vernon, attorney of record for the dancer, when she obtained her annulment of marriage from the justice in July, 1920.

Gross fraud has been perpetrated on the court, said the justice, "and perjury has been committed by both the plaintiff and her mother."

Miss Fontaine, who now is said to be specializing in Oriental dances in San Francisco, obtained her annulment on the ground that she had lived with her husband three hours, whereas the law required that they should live together for a year after their marriage, the justice said.

Adair died after his wife obtained the annulment and subsequently she brought her suit against young Whitney.

A prominent position in the suit was occupied by her infant son, born December 14, 1920, whom she said she was going to name Cornelius Whitney.

She was appearing in New York cabarets when she met young Whitney, known as "Sonny." That was in March, 1919, when he was a student at Yale.

The dancer said he proposed marriage to her in "Sonny" that was in March, 1919, when he was a student at Yale.

WGM RADIO DEPARTMENT

HELTON PROGRAM AT WGM TONIGHT

Earle A. Helton, Director of Well-Known Atlanta Orchestra, Will Be in Charge of Offering.

Fans of Station WGM will enjoy a rare musical program tonight when an arrangement by Earle A. Helton, widely known Atlanta artist, will be offered from 9:30 to 10:30. The arrangement includes popular orchestration by Helton Brothers orchestra, of which Earle A. Helton is director, and other artists who are recognized in musical circles.

Earle A. Helton is best known as a melophone soloist and takes first rank among artists in the United States. He is also a finished pianist and his horn solos and piano numbers have thrilled thousands of radio fans throughout the nation.

Wendell J. Helton as a saxophone soloist will be heard to advantage in jazz numbers tonight.

Miss Kathryn Foster, accomplished violinist, will also appear on the program. She is one of the most popular artists on WGM's staff and her violin solos and obligatos will contribute much to the evening's entertainment.

The program will be of exceptional variety, and fans will have a full hour of unusually entertaining features.

FEATURE PROGRAM AT STATION WGM

Arrangement by Miss Hilda Justine, Presented Array of Talented and Popular Artists.

A program of exceptional variety and entertainment will be given to fans of this station at the 6 to 7 o'clock broadcast last night. The arrangement by Miss Hilda Justine presented a group of Atlanta's best known and most popular radio stars who endeavored themselves to fans of WGM in their initial appearance.

Mr. Sarah James and Ted Fox, divided honors as pianists. They are artists of rare ability and accomplishment, and in popular song hits and accompaniments for saxophone and vocal numbers showed that they had lived together for a year after their marriage, the justice said.

Adair died after his wife obtained the annulment and subsequently she brought her suit against young Whitney.

POPULAR WGM STAR

Popular Aces Play for Club In Greenville

Greenville, S. C., Club Hears Warner's Seven Aces.

Warner's Seven Aces, the popular and well-known Atlanta Constitution orchestra, did not appear for the 6 to 7 o'clock program last night at this station. But—"there's a reason."

They were playing in Greenville, S. C., having been engaged by the Cotton Club of that city.

The Greenville engagement is a distinct compliment to the orchestra because it has been the annual custom of the Cotton Club for more than thirty years to engage the most popular orchestra each year for a series of three dances.

The fact that Warner's Seven Aces was engaged is abundant proof of the wide recognition The Constitution orchestra has achieved during the past few months.

Very few orchestras in the United States are as well known as the Aces, and perhaps no dance orchestra enjoys wider popularity with radio fans. They have appeared regularly for five evenings each week at WGM for many months.

The Aces will be unable to play at their accustomed hour tonight because of the Greenville engagement, but wish it announced that they will be "on the job" again Monday at the 6 to 7 o'clock broadcast.

STRONG PROGRAM GIVEN WGM FANS

Arrangement by Miss Lucy Mae Bacon, Soprano and Pianist, Was Unusually Refreshing.

No program from Station WGM in many months offered a greater variety of really entertaining musical numbers than the splendid arrangement by Miss Lucy Mae Bacon, well known Atlanta lyric soprano and pianist, at the 9:30 to 10:30 broadcast last night.

Included on the program were Mrs. Louise Deagan, pianist, and Mrs. Ruth Mobley, well known composer and reader.

The artists on last night's program have been heard on previous offerings from this station and are extremely popular with WGM fans.

Miss Bacon's delightfully smooth and sweet lyric soprano voice was heard to exceptional advantage in Bartlett's "A Dream," "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling," "Sing Me Love's Lullaby," "To a Wild Rose," and a decided triumph in her beautiful rendition of "Why Should I Cry Over You."

She is one of the best artists who appeared at WGM and fans will welcome her return to this station.

In addition to Miss Bacon's splendid saxophone qualifications, she possesses a rich baritone voice and his vocal solos last night were enjoyed equally as much as his beautiful saxophone numbers.

Charlie Thompson, baritone, who has won much local fame by his singing and who is known as the "singing building man," scored a distinct success in his vocal numbers, particularly the popular "Gee, But I Hate to Go Home Alone," breaking the chorus of this song with an original composition which added to the enjoyment of his number.

As a whole, the early broadcast last night was an unusually interesting one and this splendid group of artists will be heard again at an early date from WGM.

M'CHORD AND SISTER BACK FROM VACATION

M. McHenry M'Chord, organist and choirman of St. Philip's Episcopal Cathedral choir, and his sister, Miss Elizabeth M'Chord, soprano soloist, have returned from a vacation trip to their home in Kentucky to conduct a special rehearsal of the cathedral choir Friday evening.

Beginning Sunday, an organ recital will precede the evening services. The recital will begin at 7:30 o'clock, according to announcement by Dean Thomas H. Johnston. The Friday recital will begin at 7:45 o'clock, Mr. M'Chord said.

A. L. Sammon Dies.

Lawrenceville, Ga., January 4.—Alvin L. Sammon, age 72, died at his residence last night after an illness about two days. Mr. Sammon had been slightly sick until last Friday, when double pneumonia developed. He is survived by his widow and four children, Mayor F. Q. Sammon, of Lawrenceville, T. J. Sammon, of Decatur; R. S. Sammon, of Lawrenceville, and Guy A. Sammon, of Thomson.

FOOTLIGHT STARS WILL AMUSE FANS

Popular Vaudeville Team of P-Ko and Dabis Will Entertain Fans of WGM at Early Hour.

Tonight's 6 to 7 o'clock program will be featured by the appearance at station WGM of the vaudeville team of P-Ko and Dabis, famous for artists who will open a week's engagement at the Rialto theater beginning January 15.

Ralph Pekar is one of the cleverest character comedians and sketch artists on the stage in America today and is a real marvel at impersonations of Bert Williams, John Philip Sousa and other noted characters, so well known to America's theatergoers.

Bobby Davis, the original "Boy from Georgia," is a comedian of the first water and his clever song numbers and comedy-skits are rare treats.

These two vaudeville stars constitute a real "two-man circus" and little of the entertaining features of their acts tonight will be lost through transmission through the air. The early hour program will consist of at least sixty hearty laughs and fans will have an opportunity of hearing two foremost artists in their best known roles.

One of the outstanding features tonight—if one could distinguish between the numbers—will be the "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean" number by these boys.

The Constitution's Novel-a-Week

The Diamonds

BY J. S. FLETCHER

Inspector Nicholson could have bitten his tongue out. He knew he had made a mistake, though it was not the mistake the man was accusing him of.

"I beg your pardon most humbly, sir," he said, stepping back and lifting his hat. "I see now that I have made a mistake. Pray forgive me. I certainly took you for an old friend of mine whom I haven't seen for some years. There is, I assure you, a most extraordinary likeness between you."

"I have heard, sir," remarked Mr. Keene, "that the king himself has a double. I wish you a good day, sir, and he walked on with added solemnity."

The tradesman to whom the magistrate had been talking laughed at the latter's remark.

"That's Mr. Keene," said he. "Fancy calling him as Joe!"

"And who is Mr. Keene?" inquired the inspector.

The tradesman, glad of airing his knowledge, reeled off all he knew respecting Mr. Keene and his connection with his neighborhood.

"Decent old chap," he concluded. "A bit pompous and so on, but very quiet-mannered, and leads a peaceful life. And he's got—oh!—piles of money."

Inspector Nicholson said nothing, but he took occasion to visit the local police station, and there he saw the chief, and he had a quiet talk about the incident just related and about the pseudo Mr. Keene. And he stuck to his point like a leech.

"There's no doubt about it," he concluded. "I will stake my professional reputation that that is the man Joe Kilner, who has been living in Leeds, and was the assistant of a queer lot there, and notably of a swell businessman who had all sorts of irons in the fire and who was the victim of various aliases—James Creighton and Richard Clay among them. He'd no money in those days—where has it come from?"

"You're sure you're not mistaken?" asked the other dubiously.

"Certain," replied Inspector Nicholson with great emphasis. "I have known him and checked his face, his walk, his hands. It may be all right—but I give you a tip, keep your eyes on Mr. Keene."

CHAPTER XXVII.

News From Dublin.

Inspector Nicholson, as it has already been remarked of him, was a police official who now enjoyed high rank in the Liverpool force, which is equivalent to saying that there had always been in him a desire to rise in the service and that he had managed to achieve his success.

But he was one of those men whose ambition is boundless, and who lose no opportunity of pushing themselves on in their profession; he was, moreover, a man who had been in the service for some years, and his curiosity aroused, did not like to have it balked. Further, although he was at that time on a holiday, he saw no reason why he should not combine a little business with his pleasure.

So that night he sat down after supper in the coffee room of his hotel and wrote a very private letter to an old friend of his, Lord Lytton, who was a prominent member of the service, and without taking him very much into his confidence he asked him if he could tell him what had become of Joe, or Joseph Kilner, who had been known to both of them a few years previous.

It might be merely idle curiosity, he said to himself, when he had trolled across to the postoffice and posted his letter, that made him do this, but one could never tell what even the smallest things lead to.

If Inspector Nicholson could have looked into Mr. Keene's highly respectable dining room that evening he would have found that gentleman in a state of great and even serious discomposure.

Mr. Keene had recognized the man who accosted him, and the recognition was causing him the most severe mental anguish. He dreaded a policeman as a saint, and the sight of an innocent, unoffending rustic constable at a crossroads made him sweat, but the presence of a real, live, active, impudible detective in plain clothes caused him absolute pain, physical as well as mental.

He had continued to keep his countenance and his dignity when Inspector Nicholson addressed him, but it had only been at tremendous cost to himself, and he had been so faint after passing on that he had been obliged, against the principles which he had recently formulated and adopted, to go into a hotel and ask for old brandy.

And as he sipped it in the privacy of the coffee room he asked himself again and again: Did it mean anything? Had Nicholson found anything out? Was he—dreadful thought—was he on the track?

This notion so afflicted him that he had to ring for another dose of brandy, and he remarked to the landlord that he was suffering from an old heart complaint.

The second constable cheered Mr. Keene up a bit. He reflected that if Nicholson had wanted him he would not have let him go out of his sight. But how did he know that he was out of his sight—he might be keeping him under observation.

He got up and, stealthily opening the door, peeped out into the hall, half expecting of finding Nicholson and a force of police there. The hall was empty.

Mr. Keene closed the door gently and looked out of the window, fearing to see Nicholson peering the street on the opposite side. But there was no Nicholson there; it was obvious, then, that Nicholson was not after him at present.

At present! These words beat themselves upon Mr. Keene's mental consciousness with sickening reiteration as he walked homeward to his comfortable house. What was the use of present safety if the future was to be harassed by doubts? He had hoped that he had escaped from the world; from the time of his arrival in North Wales until that moment he had never seen eyes on a person of his previous acquaintance, and he hoped that he never would.

He tried to take cheer during his dinner, which he invariably took at 6 o'clock in the evening, as being a highly respectable and pleasant sort of time—he trying to convince himself that the meeting was merely accidental.

If Nicholson had been anything but what he was Mr. Keene would not have cared so much, but the mere fact that he was a detective and uncommonly well known in police circles by the skill which he had displayed in unraveling certain mysteries made Mr. Keene as frightened as a child is of a wasp.

That night Mr. Keene was unhappy; next day, miserable; on the third day he contrived to find that Nicholson had left the town, and his buoyancy and good spirits returned to him fourfold.

It had, then, been nothing but an accidental meeting. He dismissed the unfortunate matter from his memory and resumed his pleasant, peaceful life.

Inspector Nicholson, it was true, had left the town, but it was on Mr. Keene's business. He had received a letter from Leeds that morning in reply to his own, and it had first set him thinking a good deal and had then made him resolve to spend the remainder of his holiday in fishing for the solution of the mystery rather than for trout in the Welsh rivers.

He looked up trains and steamers, he packed his bags, and long before noon was on his way to Holyhead and Dublin. And on the way he read his old friend's letter several times and tried to see through all that it presented to him. It was not a long letter, yet it was full of suggestions to a man like Inspector Nicholson, who saw significance where most people would have seen none.

The inspector's friend said that the man Joe, or Joseph Kilner, had left Leeds rather more than three years previous, and that it was understood that he had gone to Dublin, where he had set up as a publican. The friend further remarked that he had never heard anything of him since, and that he might still be in Dublin. Then followed the passage which Inspector Nicholson found invested with much interest and significance.

"I have some faint recollection," wrote the inspector's correspondent, "that this man Kilner was in some way connected—or, rather, that his name was mentioned in connection with—a Dublin mystery, which so far as I know has never been unraveled."

"You may remember something of it—an Irish lady, Miss Driscoll, traveling from Castleford to Limerick, was robbed in Dublin by two men who turned out to be from Yorkshire—Ninian Baxendale from Castleford, the other a Leeds man who was well known to the police under the names of Richard Clay and James Creighton."

"Inspector Nicholson read the communication over and over again before he reached Dublin at 6 o'clock that evening. He had no time to waste on arrival, but immediately set to work to find the man who had charge of the Driscoll case, and before 7 he was closeted with Davidson—now, like himself, an inspector—in the latter's room."

"I wanted to talk with you," he said, "about one or two matters in which you were concerned two and a half years ago. Do you remember an Englishman named Joseph Kilner, who managed or was proprietor of a saloon or drinking bar here in Dublin?"

"Oh, very well," answered Davidson. "I knew him quite well. He bought the good-will and stock-in-trade of a business owned by a man named Phelim Hanrahan in lower Ashby street, and ran it for some nine or ten months. Oh, yes, I remember Kilner—a big, heavy, rather unshifty man, who was obliged to give up the business because of some heart trouble. I had a chat with him just because he left Dublin. Yes, what of Kilner?"

"He is living as an affluent retired London merchant in very good, quiet style at Denbigh, in North Wales," replied Nicholson. "But he is Joseph

"WELL ANDY AND MINI—I WANT TO THANK YOU FOR THE MICE THINGS YOU HAVE DONE FOR ME—I DON'T THINK I'LL SEE YOU AGAIN BEFORE I GO BUT I'LL SEE YOU ON MY WAY HOME IN A FEW WEEKS—"

"HE WASN'T LOOKING AT HIS WATCH HE WAS HOLDING HIS HAND OVER HIS MOUTH. GAPPING—NOW I SUPPOSE I'LL SPEND THE REST OF THE EVENING WASHING DISHES"

Kilner no longer—he has been known ever since he went there as Keene."

Davidson's face showed a new interest.

"Well?" he said.

"You were concerned in the Driscoll case?" said Nicholson. "A case in which two men named Clay and Baxendale made a list of diamonds at a Dublin hotel and disappeared successfully?"

Davidson made a wry face.

"Yes," he said. "I tried a new plan there and failed ignominiously. And he gave his visitor a brief account of what had happened. There were strange circumstances about that case," he said meditatively. "Miss Driscoll could not be got to account for her possession of the diamonds, or rather, for their possession by the man who had left them to her, and she would not agree to more publicity about them than was contained in the announcement that a diamond necklace had been stolen. As a matter of fact, she alleged to me that the diamonds were worth 50,000 pounds."

Inspector Nicholson uttered a curious clicking sound with his tongue.

"Aye," he said. "I thought so."

That's it; Kilner got the diamonds."

Inspector Davidson started. He looked at his visitor from England as if he could scarcely believe his eyes or his ears.

"What?" he almost shouted. "Kilner! Why, what do you mean?"

"You said that from the time Baxendale, in his disguise, was seen to enter Kilner's saloon he was never seen again," said Nicholson.

"Yes, that is so—he never was seen again," replied Davidson.

"No, and I'll tell you why," said Nicholson, nodding his head. "You didn't know, and nobody knew—here, at any rate—that Kilner was an old friend of Clay's, and had been in his employ in Yorkshire. Clay, while you were looking for him, would be in hiding at Kilner's."

Davidson leaped to his feet with a sharp exclamation.

"Ah," he said. "If I'd only known. But Kilner was a perfectly respectable tradesman—there was nothing against him and no reason to suspect him. He was also a plausible liar—I fully believed his explanation about Baxendale's robbery of the till and flight by the side door—it was so much what a sneak thief would do. Good heavens, and they were all three together! And you think—"

"I think," said Nicholson slowly, "that one might put it this way: Kilner comes across here a poor man, as I can prove he was when he left Leeds. He clears out of Dublin some few months later, and within a very few weeks he is found living in wealth in North Wales and giving indisputable proof that he is a man of means."

"Where did he get that money?"

Now, about the time of his disappearance from Dublin 50,000 pounds worth of diamonds disappear. I tell you straight out my theory is that these diamonds within a few days of the robbery at the hotel, passed into the entire possession of Joseph Kilner, and that he is living on the proceeds."

Davidson nodded his head in silence.

He walked up and down the room for a moment or two without speaking. Then he looked at his visitor. "There was something else disappeared besides the diamonds," he said in a low voice. "There were two men."

"Aye," said Nicholson. "And the probability is—two lives."

"What would you suggest?" asked Davidson.

"I think," replied Nicholson. "I should like to examine that house in lower Abbey street."

Davidson turned in his hurried walk up and down the room and regarded him with a critical expression.

"It's your opinion," he said. "At least I take it to be so, that Kilner murdered those two?"

"Pretty much about that," answered Nicholson.

"Well," said Davidson. "It's not mine. I'll tell you what I think. I think that Clay murdered Baxendale, or that Clay and Kilner managed between them to get rid of the body, and that Kilner murdered Clay later on. I've been trying to bring something to my mind and now I remember it. The night I called there to make inquiries about Baxendale I found the place closed—somewhere about 8 o'clock, that was, and it was, of course, an uncommon thing."

"Kilner opened the door to me at last and said that his man had been sent out on an errand and that he himself had been engaged at the rear of the house, and so he had locked the door for a few minutes. If we shall ever find out the whole truth I reckon we shall know that it was at that time that Clay got his quietus."

"I still think," said Nicholson quietly, "that I should like to examine that house—and as soon as possible."

"Oh," said Davidson. "We'll do it. It's the first thing to be done."

He looked at his watch. "What do you say," he continued, "if it's done tonight? The same man has it that's been there ever since Kilner said it—"

he's a thoroughly honest, respectable man, and I'll explain the thing thoroughly to him this evening and arrange to go there after closing time so as not to excite the attention of the customers. If in the meanwhile you'd like to take your supper and rest a bit I'll meet you here at 11 o'clock."

To these proposals Inspector Nicholson was nothing loath, and he present-ly sought out a quiet hotel, which he knew of old, and had supper there, and all the time he was eating and drinking he was wondering if that chance meeting with Kilner in Denbigh had frightened his man into sudden flight. He hoped it had not—thought it had not—but he knew how easily the guilty are made afraid.

If Nicholson had but known it, Mr. Keene, or Mr. Kilner, had by that time dismissed all fear. The detective had gone away from the district and he could breathe. He was very much contented with himself that night, and while Nicholson was supping in Dublin he was amusing himself with whisky and cigars at Aboukir Lodge, and caring for nothing or nobody.

He slept very well indeed, and while he was down to breakfast next morning. But as he reached his entrance hall the housemaid was opening the front door, and Mr. Keene found himself confronted by three men, in one of whom he recognized the chief constable.

Within an hour and a half the townsfolk knew that in consequence of a telegram, received the first thing that morning, the respectable Mr. Keene had been arrested on a charge of murder, and that the detectives were on their way from Ireland to convey him to the scene of his misdeeds.

White-Buff Wedding Is Brilliant Social Event

A brilliant marriage of wide social interest throughout the state was that of Miss Joyce Louise White, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry White, Jr., and Dr. Julian Holt Buff, which was solemnized Thursday evening at St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal church, at 8:30 o'clock.

Dr. James B. Mitchell, pastor of the church, performed the marriage service in the presence of a large assembly of relatives and friends.

Miss Eva Bartholomew, organist, rendered an artistic musical program preceding the ceremony.

Church Decorations

The church was decorated with handsome palms, together with Easter lilies and white chrysanthemums. The altar was banked with palms and ferns and tall palms in pyramid effect rose to the height of the organ loft. Placed at intervals on each side of the pyramid of palms were three cathedral candelabra, each holding seven burning tapers, and a large basket of white chrysanthemums. The bride and groom were seated on a four-foot canopy, lighted with electric lights in the shape of orchids and silver and white lilies and white sweet peas. A large basket of white chrysanthemums adorned the top of the canopy, and on each side stood two five-foot candelabra and a large basket of white chrysanthemums.

The seats reserved for the family connections and intimate friends were marked by clusters of Easter lilies tied with white satin ribbons.

The bride party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, and during the impressive ceremony Mrs. White's "To a Wild Rose" was softly rendered.

The ushers came first. They were Lynn Werner, Jesse Draper, Dr. Le Roy Childs and Dr. Guy Ayer.

Each bridesmaid entered with a groomsmen, and in this manner the four couples formed a semicircle around the altar. The exquisite colors of the bridesmaids' gowns, reflecting the soft pastel shades of fuchsia, pink and orchid, gave a picturesque note to the scene.

Bridal Party

Miss Leila Ponder, who entered with Murray Schoun, and Miss Mary Frances Coolidge, who entered with Dr. Harry Vaughan, were gowned in a delicate shade of fuchsia and carried cascade bouquets of Premea pink roses and Ophelia roses combined with lavender sweet peas, showered with Palma violets and valley lilies.

Miss Maud Couch, who entered with William White III, and Miss Elizabeth Parsons, who entered with Edwin Coolidge, wore chiffon gowns of a deep orchid color, and carried cascade bouquet of Premea pink roses and Ophelia roses, combined with lavender sweet peas, and showered with valley lilies.

Miss Geraldine White, who was her sister's junior bridesmaid, wore orchid over pink chiffon, trimmed with silver lace and French flowers. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of Dresden flowers in a dainty lace holder.

The bridesmaids' gowns were similarly finished with chiffon and mesh. The slightly draped waist of each gown had a bateau neck and was trimmed with silver lace. The skirt was fashioned with a short, square panel in the front and in the back, and with a long round panel on each side. Each panel was edged with silver lace and had a medallion of silver lace trimmed with a bowknot of silver ribbon and French flowers.

The side trains which fell from each arm were caught with silver ribbon and fell in graceful folds. Each bridesmaid wore about her forehead a band of pearls and crystals.

Mrs. Boykin R. Pennington and Mrs. Robert Warren, of Albany, Ga., were the two matrons of honor. Their gowns, of a pale shade of orchid, were fashioned like those of the bridesmaids, and they carried cascade bouquets of Premea pink roses and Ophelia roses combined with pink snapdragons and pink sweet peas, and showered with valley lilies.

The ringbearer, who was Carroll McGauley, Jr., the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll McGauley, carried a ring box in a colonial suit of pink crepe de chine, fashioned with frills, and colonial buckles on his shoes. His hat was of pink crepe de chine, adorned by a pink ostrich plume.

Little Mary Puffy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Puffy, acted as flower girl for her cousin and wore a dainty frock of pink chiffon, fashioned with many ruffles, which were trimmed with bowknots of silver ribbon and French flowers. She carried a French basket filled with pink roses and sweet peas.

Miss Josephine Williford

Makes Debut at Washington

Washington, January 4.—(Special.)—One of the notable events of the Washington social season was the debut ball given tonight by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Pembroke Thom in honor of Miss Josephine Williford, of Atlanta, the daughter of Mrs. Paul B. Brooks, at Rauschen's. Attending her presentation to society were several members of the president's cabinet, a large representation of diplomatic and congressional circles and the younger set in the capital. General John J. Pershing headed the delegation from the army, while the brilliant uniforms of the naval officers and the foreign envoys invested the ball with a touch of color.

Miss Williford and Mrs. Thom received alone.

The scene of the ball was lavishly decorated in palms, smilax and evergreens, while novel lighting effects cast a rich glow over the ballroom where the guests were enjoyed until an early hour Friday. Supper was served at midnight and breakfast before dawn.

Miss Williford wore a white velvet dress, slightly draped and embellished in brilliant, and carried an old-fashioned bouquet.

The ball was attended by more than 600 guests.

Miss Ashcraft

Gives Luncheon.

Miss Nina Wiley of Clenden, La., who is the guest of Miss Rebecca Ashcraft, was honor guest at an elaborate luncheon Thursday, given by Miss Ashcraft at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ashcraft, in Druid Hills.

The rooms of the home were attractively decorated with red roses and narcissi. The artistically appointed table was overlaid with a lace cover and had as a central decoration a large silver vase filled with American Beauty roses. Silver candelabra holding unshaded red tapers were placed at either end of the table.

The hostess received her guests

The lovely young bride, who was given in marriage by her father, William Henry White, Jr., was radiantly beautiful in her bridal robe of broad silver cloth, made according to the long lilies, the waist was made with the latest fashion, which was bordered with a double row of rhinestones. The skirt, which was slightly draped, was caught on the left side with a cluster of orange blossoms in flower effect. The skirt had a short circular front panel and side trains of crepe silver cloth. The long court train hung from the shoulders and was fastened to the waist by a double line from which point broadened silver cloth fell in a graceful manner. The train was edged with a double band of rhinestones and the point where the silver cloth met the tulle was marked by a row of rhinestones. Her wedding veil of tulle was coral-colored and studded with rhinestones and crystals. At intervals around the top were dainty sprays of orange blossom buds and at each side was a cluster of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of orchids and valley lilies in shower effect.

Her only ornament was a diamond and platinum bracelet, the gift of the groom.

Mrs. Mendelsohn's wedding march was played as the bride party left the church.

Reception at "Whitehurst." Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. White entertained at an elaborate reception at "Whitehurst," their home on Peachtree road.

Mrs. White was handsomely gowned in orchid chiffon velvet, broadened and made with a train of silver cloth. She wore a corsage bouquet of orchids and valley lilies.

Assisting Mr. and Mrs. White in entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. John E. Otley, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cone, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bridges, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Paxon, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Allen, and Dr. and Mrs. Guy Ayer.

Miss Henrietta Davis kept the bride's book. Serving punch were Miss Jeanette Bailey, Miss Nell Clayton, Miss Mary Rhoter and Miss Elizabeth Perkins.

Palms and chrysanthemums decorated the house. Graceful garlands of smilax draped the chandeliers and the stairway was decorated by a profusion of smilax. The guests were received in the drawing-room, before the large open fireplace, which was flanked with palms. At the head of the receiving line stood a tall basket filled with white chrysanthemums and on the mantel were quantities of pink Ophelia roses in artistic arrangement.

The bride's table, in the dining room, was beautiful in every detail. It was covered with an exquisite cover of lace and embroidery and in the center was the pyramid wedding cake, iced in pale pink, embellished with lavender flowers and headed from the top with valley lilies. A tiny vase of sweet peas and valley lilies adorned the top tier and banked about the base was a mass of pink roses and lavender sweet peas. Encircling this was a profusion of smilax and pink Ophelia roses in artistic arrangement.

An orchestra furnished music throughout the evening.

Dr. and Mrs. White, and Mrs. Buff left for a wedding trip to Cuba. Later they will visit in Palm Beach and Miami and upon their return will be at home at the Georgian Terrace until the completion of the Park Court apartments on Piedmont avenue and Thirteenth street.

The bride's traveling costume was of Chinese blue kitten's ear, trimmed with grey crepe de chine. She wore a blouse of Persian panne velvet, and her hat was a smart grey crepe de chine turban trimmed with a long streamer of grey crepe de chine, and adorned by an ornament of pearls.

Prominent Families.

Mrs. Buff is one of Atlanta's most charming belles. She graduated from Washington university, where she was treasurer of the O. B. X. sorority, and also attended Hollins college. At college she was a popular member of the dramatic and literary clubs. During the war she did Red Cross work in the knitting rooms at Hollins. Mrs. Buff was also a P. M. Miss Weil Weds B. J. Burnsteen at Home Ceremony

An interesting event of Wednesday evening was the marriage of Miss Edith Caroline Weil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Weil, and Bernard Joseph Burnsteen, of Portland, Maine, the ceremony taking place at nine o'clock at the home of the bride's parents on Washington street.

The ceremony, which came as a surprise to friends, was witnessed only by the immediate families of the bride and groom, Rabbi David Marx officiating.

The home was decorated with quantities of ferns and palms, which formed a background for baskets filled with white roses. The mantels were banked with maidenhair fern.

Mrs. James Garfield Eichberg, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and the only attendant.

The bride wore a three-piece tailleur of brown velvety, trimmed with coral and ruffs of tan crepe. Her gown was elaborately embroidered in brown, and she wore an imported hat of satin and straw, trimmed in ostrich. She carried a bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies.

Mr. Burnsteen and his bride left Thursday for a trip through the New England states and will later make their home in Providence, R. I.

Mrs. Burnsteen was one of the most attractive and popular young women of Atlanta. She is very talented, having appeared in public many times through the Drama league and the Little Theater guild. She graduated

WARNER'S SEVEN ACES

Woman Judge Will Speak Before Fifth District P.-T. A.

Judge Camille Kelly, of Memphis, Tenn., only woman judge of the juvenile court in the south, has been invited to speak before the fifth district congress of mothers and P.-T. A.'s which will be in session all day Friday, January 20, in the assembly room of the Piedmont hotel, Capitol Square, well-known public-spirited Atlantian, is sponsoring the movement of bringing Judge Kelly, this distinguished southerner, to Atlanta, her visit to be one of conspicuous interest. Mrs. Z. V. Peterson is president of the fifth district and will preside at the meeting.

Judge Kelly has been in office for three years in the Memphis juvenile court. Her main motive in her work is in trying to get the child happily situated, and to relieve them of heavy responsibilities, then she states there will be no breaking of laws. When asked how she put across her successful court measures, Judge Kelly replied, "I just get the co-operation of everyone concerned in the case and the result is assured."

Alice Class Holds Meeting Tuesday.

The regular meeting of the Alice class of the Capitol Avenue Baptist church was held Tuesday evening at the home of the Misses Iris and Ethelyn Rowden.

After the business meeting, there were several contests and refreshments were served.

Homer Faulkner sang and was accompanied on the piano by Miss Eugenia Faulkner.

Miss Shearouse to Wed Mr. Heidt.

Mr. and Mrs. George Marion

Judge Kelly is assisted by the chief probation officer, Mrs. King; three white personal investigators connected with the court, who go about in the city and investigate cases; and two colored officers, a man and wife, who are in charge of the colored juvenile detention home which is in a separate building. A court reporter who keeps the records, completes the staff.

The Memphis juvenile court is now situated in a large old residence which has been adapted for court purposes. On the first floor are the offices and court; the girls are accommodated on the second floor where they are in charge of a matron; while the third floor is given over to the boys with a man in charge of them. In the rear of the building is the truant school, where the children brought to the detention home are taught by a teacher provided by the board of education. There will be many interesting phases of the court discussed by Judge Kelly when she speaks in Atlanta.

Ben Hill Chapter, O. E. S., to Meet.

A regular meeting of Ben Hill chapter, No. 226, Order Eastern Star, will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Masonic temple. All qualified members are cordially invited to attend.

Shearous, of Guyton, Ga., have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Alice Edith, to John Villard Heidt, of Atlanta, on Saturday, January 20, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, in the Methodist church in Guyton.

Children's Matinee At Howard Theatre Saturday Morning

The children's matinee at the Howard theatre Saturday will offer entertainment to many little patrons of these selected performances that will cover a feature story, an instructional reel and a cartoon comedy. These performances are sponsored by the better films committee of Atlanta, the Parent-Teacher association members of the committee having charge of this branch of better films work.

Mrs. Porter Langston is chairman of selected programs and Mrs. W. P. Lemmon is chairman of the group of women who chaperon each performance. Mrs. B. M. Boykin is president of the better films committee and Mrs. Alonzo Richardson is chairman of the extension division of the committee. "The Sleeping Beauty" fairy tale makes up a part of the story of "Enchantment," which will be the feature picture on Saturday, and Marion Davies is the heroine. It is given as a pageant essential to the development of the story and the scenery and costumes will appeal to every child. The main story is concerned with the gay and irresponsible "fapper," and her conversion to the ideals of her conservative mother and father.

The instructional reel will picture "The Land of the White Cedar." Mrs. G. H. Guy will chaperon at the Alpha theater matinee, assisted by Mrs. L. C. Helsenbach. The Alpha program will be another Buffalo Bill episode and a comedy reel. Mrs. J. P. Buchanan and Mrs. R. E. L. Tolbert will assist Mrs. Lemmon.

Mrs. Emma Bell du Bose Chamberlin was elected president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters Thursday. She is also president of the state league.

The first application helped enormously, the second, a month later, made a decided change in the appearance of the hair. I think half a dozen will cure it, the whole trouble so he need only use the oil now and then as his hair is naturally very dry.

Buy or make the "ar-and-off" mixture. Part the hair, rub in tar with a toothbrush. Part again, rub on more tar, and keep this up until the scalp is covered. Let it stay ten minutes, then wash off with hot water and repeated applications of good soap, preferably liquid. You may want the water hot. A nose is splendid—and rinse well at the end of the shampoo.

Two Chums—Hair waved on hair pins is frizzy, ugly, artificial and means the end of healthy hair, for it will break it all in no time at all. If you must have waved hair, though why it's necessary I can't see (you admit it's thick and healthy), moisten the strands of it and oil each strand with a kid or a rag currier. Being soft, these won't crack the hair and the result will be a pretty and natural looking curl.

Catherine—I think you are to be all the more congratulated that your popularity is among girls rather than boys. Girls of your age see very clearly through each other, and they admire real worth when they find it. Whereas boys under 20 are so immature in judgment, and so easily impressed by surface qualities, that a fluff of gold hair or an attractive nose will blind them to any amount of shallowness and selfishness. That is a general statement of course and like all general statements open to contradiction.

Jones—Cut that ingrowing toenail in V shape with the V pointing in. This will help draw the nail up from the flesh. Wear broad toe shoes.

Tomorrow—Why Some Are Fat. All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be inclosed with the question.—The Editor.

HOW TO SAVE WHEN SHOPPING

By Ruth Leigh

Author of "The Human Side of Retail Selling," "The ABC of Retailing," Etc.

As fruit is so expensive this time of year, particularly oranges and grapefruit, it is well, in selecting them, to get most value for your money by buying only the most desirable. When you are buying oranges and grapefruit, the way to test them is to feel the weight in your hand. They should feel heavy. The next point is to demand only those fruits that have thin skins. As a rule, Florida oranges have this feature, and most juicy. It simply means that, if there is any softness of any break in the skin, the chances of decay and waste are naturally greater. You will be safe in following the general principle that good fruit is, as a rule, entirely unblemished.

A SLEEVELESS "COVER ALL" APRON.

4099. Unbleached muslin with cross stitching in red or blue would be nice for this serviceable model. One may use gingham, percale, crepe or drill. A 38-inch size requires 5 7-8 yards of 32-inch material. To trim as illustrated requires 1 yard. The width of the skirt at the foot is 2 3-8 yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

A MODEL EASY TO DEVELOP AND ECONOMICAL OF MATERIAL.

4263. Figure was chosen for this practical apron with rick rack braid for trimming. One could have gingham or cambric or satin. The style is also good for rubber-finished fabrics and for crepe.

The pattern is cut in one size—Medium. It requires 1 3-4 yard of 32-inch material.

Woman's Auxiliary Meets to Elect New Officers

The Woman's Relief corps, auxiliary to the O. N. Mitchell Post, G. A. R., held the first meeting of 1923 at the residence of Mrs. J. G. Englehart, 679 Piedmont avenue. Mrs. Charles Brodt and Mrs. Englehardt were joint hostesses. The house was beautifully decorated with poinsettias and other light blossoms.

The Woman's Relief corps is one of the organizations in Atlanta noted for its good works. Recently they gave a substantial contribution to the maintenance fund of the Tallulah Falls school. They assist in all relief work of the G. A. R. Post and are for the National cemetery at Marietta on Decoration day.

At the business meeting Thursday there was an election of officers which resulted in the re-election of the present incumbents who are Mrs. Catherine A. Kling, president; Mrs. Oscar Ragland, first vice president; Mrs. E. J. Moriarty, second vice president; Mrs. W. Howard Smith, treasurer.

Mrs. Ira Freeman succeeds Mrs. George Collins as secretary. After the election there was a memorial service for Mrs. Josephine Wood and Mrs. Jane Reed, who have recently died. Mrs. D. I. Carson and Mrs. E. Lowry composed the committee which presented beautiful resolutions on their death and Miss Lois Morgan sang "In a Garden." Mrs. Ragland recited an original poem dedicated to Mrs. Reed and Mrs. Wood.

Mrs. Alston to Entertain at Home.

Mrs. Robert Cotton Alston has issued invitations to a luncheon on Tuesday, January 9, at 1:30 o'clock, at which she will entertain at her home on Peachtree street.

BEAUTY CHATS

By Edna K. Forbes

TAR APPLICATION.

A short chat I wrote recently about tar applications brought me a lot of letters, some asking whether such heroic and complicated measures were necessary to remove dandruff.

It depends upon the amount of dandruff and the time this affliction has lasted. It depends upon one's own health—for dandruff is stubborn when the system is run down. It depends upon a great number of things.

I'd advise first treating the scalp with oil. Hot crude oil or hot olive oil, rubbed well into the scalp, either with the finger tips or with an electric vibrator, is often enough to cure a very bad dandruff condition. The oil must be put on some hours before the shampoo, preferably the night before.

But if months of oil treatments do not do any good, then try tar applications. In fact, I tested one once upon a man who had had very bad dandruff for ten years, in spite of the daily use of an oil hair tonic. He wouldn't try the hot oil rubs, he wanted something "radical." I advised tar.

The first application helped enormously, the second, a month later, made a decided change in the appearance of the hair. I think half a dozen will cure it, the whole trouble so he need only use the oil now and then as his hair is naturally very dry.

Buy or make the "ar-and-off" mixture. Part the hair, rub in tar with a toothbrush. Part again, rub on more tar, and keep this up until the scalp is covered. Let it stay ten minutes, then wash off with hot water and repeated applications of good soap, preferably liquid. You may want the water hot. Constitution Frolics Promise Big Tri

The picture shows Miss Hattie Chappel, 385 W. Peachtree, (left) and Miss Elizabeth Brooke, two members of The Constitution Frolics' beauty chorus. Miss Chappel supplements her good looks with clever dancing—and as for Miss Brooke, she has received four "mash" notes and one offer from a motion picture director already, and has been a member of the cast hardly a week. The Frolics will be presented during the week of January 8, at Loew's Grand theater.

That "The Constitution Frolics" to be presented next week as an extra attraction on the regular program of Loew's Grand theater, is going to rank with the best shows ever given in Atlanta, was clearly shown at a rehearsal at the Ansley road Wednesday night. So far as the cast is concerned, there seems to be no reason why the show could not be presented tonight. The ensemble numbers would do credit to any first rate professional company. The girls are pretty and graceful, and their performance reflects much credit on Mr. and Mrs. Billy Baskette. The lyrics of the songs presented are fetching and the score is tuneful.

Mr. Baskette created a synopsized riot when he played his new song, "When I Heard Those Jazz Hounds Play in Georgia." Members of the cast, not knowing he was playing the score completed less than a week ago, danced and refused to proceed with their rehearsal until he played a half a dozen encores. The lyrics of the piece gives Warner's Seven Aces credit for being the most spontaneous purveyors of jazz music in all Dixie.

WILSON IS BOUND TO GRAND JURY; FURNISHES BAIL

H. E. Wilson, who shot and seriously wounded W. D. Pepper during an encounter at the Harvard apartment last Saturday night, Thursday was bound over to the grand jury under a $500 bond by Recorder J. H. Decker. The bond was furnished by the commission. Mr. Attorney L. B. Guilbeau, representing Wilson, waived preliminary hearing in police court, and upon showing that Pepper's condition had sufficiently improved to justify the committal hearing, Judge Johnson held Wilson for investigation by the grand jury.

COCA-COLA COMPANY HOLDS ANNUAL MEET

Talks on advertising featured the annual sales and advertising convention of the Coca-Cola corporation now in session at the plant on Plum street. B. S. McCash, director of advertising, presided over the session.

FAIR AND WARMER WEATHER FRIDAY, SAYS FORECASTER

Fair and warmer was the forecast for Friday made Thursday by C. F. Von Herrmann, local weather forecaster. Mr. Von Herrmann said the mercury fell to 30 degrees Thursday morning but a decided change would take place Friday. A warm wave from the south would bring the temperature to the 40s, which is very unusual at this time of the year. Mr. Von Herrmann stated.

NEW MEMBERS NAMED ON CANAL COMMISSION

Governor Hardwick on Thursday appointed two prominent South Georgians to the state Canal and Waterways commission, as successors to former members who have resigned. Representative James T. Voege, of St. Marys, was named to succeed J. H. Decker, also of St. Marys and chairman of the commission. Mr. Decker resigned on account of illness in his family, which will carry him away from the state for some time. Voege is a native of the state and proper attendance to his duties to the commission.

A RARE BOOTLEGGER Paralyzed, Walks 110 Miles to Plead Guilty.

Jacksonville, Fla., January 4. John Gafford, 47, partly paralyzed, walked 110 miles to Jacksonville to plead guilty in federal court here on a charge of moonshining. Facing a jail sentence and without money with which to pay a fine, Gafford refused to sell even a hog from his scuttyly apple farm for a railroad fare, so that his wife and four small children might be provided for. He was caught by revenue agents operating a still near the Madison county seat in November.

CITY COURT RULING TO BE RECONSIDERED

Decision Will Be of Importance in Hundreds of Cases in Georgia.

Rulings made by the state supreme court in seven cases involving the city court of Thomasville, were recalled Thursday by the court. This action is believed to forecast a possible reversal of the ruling, the case now again being in the hands of the court for decision.

This case has attracted wide attention in the state and, it is stated, the recent decision now recalled has resulted in demoralization of the city courts in a large number of Georgia cities.

The recalled ruling was based on the fact that it was argued that the city courts which were created by an act of the legislature, were not constitutionally created city courts in accordance with the legal requirements.

The constitution of the state, in referring to city courts, refers specifically to the city courts of Atlanta, Savannah and several other cities, and then declares that the rules shall also apply to like courts established in other cities.

The argument was offered that inasmuch as the city court of Thomasville, and of about 200 other Georgia towns in the same category, was not a "like" court, because the act creating them has given certain concessions, among others the power to hear cases before juries composed of less than twelve jurors, cases could not be carried to the higher courts on writ of error taken from these courts.

By its recent action Thursday, the supreme court again takes the case under consideration and it is probable that a new decision will be handed down shortly.

At Cantigny, France, a little red schoolhouse is being erected in memory of the American soldiers who fought there.

SLEUTH'S HOME ROBBED
15-Year-Old Youth Admits Breaking Into Houses.

Admitting burglary of two homes, 15-year-old Edward Sasser, giving his address as 141 Cherokee avenue, was held at the juvenile detention home last night for trial in juvenile court today.

The lad is accused of breaking in a window and entering the home of Detective Joe A. Allen at 330 Crew street while the Allen family was attending a funeral, and of breaking into the home of Mrs. H. C. Drasbach on Woodward avenue Thursday.

Skilled workers in the manufacturing end of the carpet, upholstery and allied industries in America are receiving wages from 170 to 200 per cent above those of pre-war times.

Federal Liquor Officers Make Enviably Record

Prohibition Chief's Report Shows Result of Past Year's Activities.

Federal prohibition agents operating in Georgia have a better record than any other state in the Union, in results achieved during 1922, according to Federal Prohibition Director Fred D. Dismuke, who made public his annual report Thursday.

The force of 28 agents destroyed 2,716 distilleries, 1,243 gallons of whiskey, made 1,143 arrests, and aided in 2,133 prosecutions during the year, the report states.

"A record of our activities for the calendar year ending 1922," said Mr. Dismuke, "shows an increase of 614 seizures of stills, over the fiscal year ending June 30, and an increase of 25 per cent over last year in all departments."

"We are highly elated with this report," said Mr. Dismuke, "and we have a record which has not been approached by any other so far as we know. Many of the other southern states have forces twice as large as ours but do not report as much activity."

Other items mentioned in the report follow:

Gallons of beer destroyed, 2,116,449; fermenters destroyed, 27,931; stills destroyed, 1,067; automobiles seized, 1,067; total value of property destroyed, $624,148.91; value property appraised, but not destroyed, $79,515; taxes reported for assessment, $1,622,826.53; gallons syrup destroyed, 5,029; gallons brandy, 254; pounds sugar seized, 15,575; pounds wine destroyed, 2,193; gallons cider destroyed, 5,020; number of mules seized, 16; horses, 2; wagons, 3; buggies, 5.

SAW BARS OF PRISON
Four Negroes Make Break for Liberty.

An investigation was started on Thursday to determine how four negro prisoners at the south convict camp came into possession of back saws. They were discovered Thursday morning trying to gain their liberty by sawing through the steel bars of their cells.

The negroes, Jim Nolan, serving a 20-year sentence for highway robbery; Joe Askew, serving a term of 7 years for car breaking; Ezra Bryant, serving a term for burglary; and Jim Stockton, serving a misdemeanor sentence of a year.

They were discovered by Warden C. E. Collier and Camp Clerk W. P. Barlow sawing the bars, it is claimed.

THREE AUTO WRECKS
One Man Hurt When Car Hits Truck.

Three automobile accidents which resulted in one injury were being investigated by the police Thursday. S. R. Fisher, of 43 North Mayson avenue, was hurt when the truck he was driving into Washington street from East Fair street was struck by a high-powered automobile that, witness claim, was traveling at a rate of speed not less than 50 to 60 miles per hour.

After striking the truck the driver of the speeding car, the rear of the machine and made his escape. The police took possession of the disabled auto.

In another collision at Simpson and Ashby streets, Thursday afternoon, three automobiles were damaged. No one was hurt.

The collision was caused, according to the investigation, by Officer John W. Hollingsworth, who witnessed the accident, when an automobile driven by Dr. O. O. Fanning, of 9 West Ontario street, was struck by a car owned by Dr. T. E. Tolleson, of 100 Hollersden street.

The force of the impact threw both machines against a city's auto, in which the driver, Officer Hollingsworth and his assistant, J. C. Bell, were sitting.

Officers Hollingsworth and Bell placed Dr. Tolleson under arrest and charged a charge of reckless driving. They charged he was running at about 30 miles per hour.

Two automobiles were badly damaged. One of the collisions about 9 o'clock Thursday morning at Belknap and English avenues.

A. T. Burdett, of 690 Chestnut street, and Will Larkin, of 70 New Street, were drivers of the cars. Each claimed the accident to have been unavoidable and no cases were made by the police.

Funeral for Pioneer Woolen Mill Owner Held Thursday Afternoon.

The funeral of William M. Nixon, pioneer Georgia woolen owner, and one of the leading industrial promoters of the south, was held Thursday morning from the First Presbyterian church, Rev. C. J. Harrell officiated. Burial was in the North View cemetery mausoleum.

Mr. Nixon died Tuesday after an illness that extended for more than 10 months. He was first confined to his home at 60 East Fourteenth street, but when his condition became steadily worse he was removed to a private hospital.

Early in his career Mr. Nixon founded the Athens Woolen Mills in Athens, Ky. In 1890 he came to Atlanta, where he founded the Atlanta Woolen Mills, which have grown to a place of prominence in the industry of the south.

Taking an active interest in church affairs, Mr. Nixon was prominently identified with the church religious workers of Atlanta. He was at one time steward of the First Methodist church.

The pallbearers at the funeral were Asa G. Candler, R. A. Henry, J. H. Miller, J. F. Miller, J. F. Miller, Addison Maupin, Frank Atlee, the stewards of the church formed an honorary escort to the cemetery.

MISS AGNES DAVIS
DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS IN ALBANY

News was received in Atlanta Thursday of the death of Miss Agnes Davis, the eighteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Davis, of Albany, Ga., which occurred at the home of her parents Thursday morning.

Her death followed a brief illness from pneumonia and flu and was a distinct shock to the entire community where she was one of the most popular and attractive members of the younger set.

Miss Davis was a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Davis, of Albany, Ga., of Mrs. T. L. Hillman and the late Dr. T. L. Hillman, of Albany, and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Naff, of Atlanta.

Mr. Davis is publisher of the Albany Herald, and he and Mrs. Davis and their daughter, Agnes, were frequent visitors to Atlanta where they have a wide circle of friends.

Albany, Ga., January 4.—Agnes, the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Davis, died at her home this morning after a lingering illness which was caused by pneumonia. Miss Davis was taken ill shortly after returning home from the Christmas holidays from St. Mary's school, Raleigh, N. C., where she was a student.

The funeral will be held at St. Paul's Episcopal church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

SLOWDOWN COMES
IN MANUFACTURE
OF ILLICIT SPIRITS

A full has been observed in a certain manufacturing business. The holidays are past; the Christmas "kick" has been drunken—or its absence mourned—and now the manufacture of illicit spirits has slowed down, according to prohibition enforcement officers.

Assistant Prohibition Director C. H. Parks stated Thursday that reports of work throughout the state indicate that the makers of whiskey have cut down their output. This means the activities since Christmas day.

Since Christmas day, said Mr. Parks, "have our men captured any stills which would indicate that the owners were pushing production. For instance, Federal Agent Allen reported four stills captured in Hartsville county on January 2. None of the equipments was very large, and the supply of beer captured with them does not compare with the supplies which we captured just before the holidays."

"Before Christmas it was no unusual thing to find several thousand gallons of beer when we were on a making outfit, but now two or three hundred seems to be the limit, and in the Haralson county case, no whiskey at all was captured."

BOY'S EYE IS INJURED
Stokes Brown Accidentally
Shot by Playmate.

Stokes Brown, 10-year-old son of J. E. Brown, president of the Southern Bell telephone company, will leave for Philadelphia today, in company with Dr. R. B. Ridley, to be treated by eye specialists.

The youth was injured last Friday when one of his playmates accidentally shot him in the eye with a lead pellet from an air rifle.

The first Dr. Ridley and Dr. F. P. Calhoun, who were summoned to attend the boy, thought the bullet had pierced the eye. As the case developed it was learned that the injured eye was struck by a glancing blow.

The youth has been confined to his bed since the accident, and attending surgeons have declined to hazard any opinion relative to the extent of the injury. Surgeons say he has not lost the sight of the injured eye, but describe the patient's condition as still most serious.

Miss Davis was a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Davis, of Albany, Ga., of Mrs. T. L. Hillman and the late Dr. T. L. Hillman, of Albany, and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Naff, of Atlanta.

Mr. Davis is publisher of the Albany Herald, and he and Mrs. Davis and their daughter, Agnes, were frequent visitors to Atlanta where they have a wide circle of friends.

Albany, Ga., January 4.—Agnes, the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Davis, died at her home this morning after a lingering illness which was caused by pneumonia. Miss Davis was taken ill shortly after returning home from the Christmas holidays from St. Mary's school, Raleigh, N. C., where she was a student.

The funeral will be held at St. Paul's Episcopal church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

A full has been observed in a certain manufacturing business. The holidays are past; the Christmas "kick" has been drunken—or its absence mourned—and now the manufacture of illicit spirits has slowed down, according to prohibition enforcement officers.

Assistant Prohibition Director C. H. Parks stated Thursday that reports of work throughout the state indicate that the makers of whiskey have cut down their output. This means the activities since Christmas day.

Since Christmas day, said Mr. Parks, "have our men captured any stills which would indicate that the owners were pushing production. For instance, Federal Agent Allen reported four stills captured in Hartsville county on January 2. None of the equipments was very large, and the supply of beer captured with them does not compare with the supplies which we captured just before the holidays."

"Before Christmas it was no unusual thing to find several thousand gallons of beer when we were on a making outfit, but now two or three hundred seems to be the limit, and in the Haralson county case, no whiskey at all was captured."

BOY'S EYE IS INJURED
Shot by Playmate.

Stokes Brown, 10-year-old son of J. E. Brown, president of the Southern Bell telephone company, will leave for Philadelphia today, in company with Dr. R. B. Ridley, to be treated by eye specialists.

The youth was injured last Friday when one of his playmates accidentally shot him in the eye with a lead pellet from an air rifle.

The first Dr. Ridley and Dr. F. P. Calhoun, who were summoned to attend the boy, thought the bullet had pierced the eye. As the case developed it was learned that the injured eye was struck by a glancing blow
